LONDON, MAY 7. (BULLETIN).— —THE NEWS OF THE SINKING OF THE LUSITANIA IS CONFIRMED. SHE WAS TORPEDOED.

LONDON, MAY 7.—THE LUSITANIAIS REPORTED TO HAVE BEEN BEACHED. HER PASSENGERS AND CREW ARE BELIEVED SAFE, ACCORDING TO LLOYDS.

LONDON, MAY 7. (BULLETIN)—A MESSAGE TO LLOYDS REPORTS THE LUSITANIA HAS BEEN SUNK OFF KINSA LE, IRELAND.

NEW YORK, May 7—The New York office of the Cunard Steamship Company today received from the Liverpool agents an unconfirmed report that the great liner Lusitania has been torpedoed off the coast of Ireland by a German submarine. The following statement was issued at the Cunard line office at 1:05 o'clock this afternoon.

"The Cunard Steamship Company has received an unconfirmed report of the Lusitania having been torpedoed by a submarine off the coast of Ireland.

"Any information positively confirming or denying this report will be promptly issued by the Cunard Line."

Many wild and conflicting reports were in circulation when the statement was issued by the Cunard Line. One was that the Lusitania had been torpedoed at 8:20 o'clock this morning. Another was that the liner had been torpedoed at 2 o'clock this afternoon and had sunk in 30 minutes.

In giving out the statement Cunard officials emphasized the word "unconfirmed," but stated that they were making every possible effort to ascertain the truth or falsity of the report.

That they believed it true was indicated by the fact that they immediately transmitted by cable to England the full passenger list of the Lusitania.

The Lusitania sailed from New York last Saturday despite the advertised warning of the German Embassy that passengers traveling on ships of the allies would run the risk of being blown up in mid-ocean.

There was much speculation as a result of this general warning. New York dispatches at the time declared that whether or not it could be taken in any way as a threat against the Lusitania could only be conjectured.

Officials of the German Embassy said that so far as they knew the notice was only a reminder, and did not indicate any new naval operations by Germany.

At the Cunard pier in New York, there was some excitement just prior to the sailing of the giant ship. This arose from rumors that passengers had received anonymous telegrams stating that the Lusitania would be torpedoed.

FALSE REPORT.

Reporters at once got busy. A thorough investigation proved these reports absolutely unfounded.

One of the early rumors had it that Alfred G. Vanderbilt, one of the passengers, had received such a telegram, and had torn it in bits. This was later denied as false.

The German Embassy's warning follows:

NOTICE.

"Travelers intending to embark on the Atlantic voyage are reminded that a state of war exists between Germany and her allies and Great Britain and her allies; that the zone of war includes the waters adjacent to the British Isles; that, in accordance with formal notice given by the imperial German government, vessels flying the flag of Great Britain, or of any of her allies, are liable to destruction in those waters, and that travelers sailing in the war zone on ships of Great Britain or her allies do so at their own risk.—Imperial German Embassy, Washington, D. C., April 22, 1915."

This notice appeared as an advertisement in the New York newspapers.

In the face of this advertisement the big Cunarder not only sailed but carried more passengers and cargo than on any trip since the war started.

PROMINENT PEOPLE.

Many prominent Americans were among the first cabin passengers, and all declared unlimited confidence in the liner and agreed with Charles P. Sumner, general manager of the line, that the big vessel's speed was the best guarantee against submarine attack.

Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Hubbard, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, who expected to be in London for several weeks; D. A. Thomas, Lady Mackworth, Charles Frohman and Charles Klein did not seem to be apprehensive before sailing and suggested there was more excitement over the German embassy's message ashore than on board.

Charles P. Sumner, general manager of the line, declared that the Germans have been trying to spoil the British shipping trade for some time.

"Never until today have they manifested such an active desire to put us out of business," he said Saturday. "I anticipate that from this time on every German method that can be devised will be used to keep people from travelling on our ships.

MRS. CARMAN IS DAZED BY ATTACK

By ROBERT C. CRANSTON,
Staff Correspondent of International News Service.

MINEOLA, N. Y., May 7.—Describing in detail the dramatic shooting of Mrs. Louise D. Bailey in his office last Summer, Dr. Edwin Carman today took the stand in the second trial of his wife, who is accused of killing Mrs. Bailey, of whom it was said she was jealous.

After some preliminary testimony the doctor was called to the stand. His version of the tragedy was:

"Mrs. Bailey was preparing to leave my office. She had her hand upon the door knob as we stood chatting. Suddenly there was a crash of glass. I turned and saw a hand push through the broken glass with a revolver in its grasp. I jumped back and as I did so a shot rang out. Mrs. Bailey fell toward me.

"I grasped her arm and as I did so she exclaimed: 'Doctor, I believe I have been shot.' Then I felt the blood running down over my hand and stretched Mrs. Bailey upon the floor. She died almost immediately. I do not know who fired the shot."

MAINTAINS CONFIDENCE.

Mrs. Carman today saw her defence against the charge of killing Mrs. Bailey develop under gloomy circumstances. Despite the fact that she had just gone through the worst day in either this or her first trial, Mrs. Carman appeared as calmly confident of her ultimate acquittal as she has since first arrested.

She started forth to establish her innocence under terrific fire. She had seen her loyal relatives shrink and become confused by District Attorney Smith's cross-questioning.

She heard the diffident Celia Coleman, the negro maid of all work in her home when Mrs. Bailey was killed say that the detectives hired by her attorney offered $300 to Mrs. Carman's money if she, Celia, would repudiate her story of accusation and alleged confession.

She sat seemingly dazed while the girl's cousin, George Toomer, told of overhearing the bribe offer and of hearing from Celia's own lips on July 2, two days after the murder, the same story that Celia told at the first trial and again on Wednesday.

She became ashen when Smith grew more savage as he cross-examined the witnesses produced by her chief of counsel, George Morton Levy. Unlike the District Attorney, Levy produced nothing new. He called the accused woman's mother, father, sister, little daughter, niece and nephew.

But the sum total of their testimony was of the alibi variety—Mrs. Carman was not down stairs after supper until after the shooting was done.

Upon all of these witnesses, save the child—little Elizabeth—Mr. Smith made a bitter attack. The child was near to tears and the prosecutor dreaded the scene that a cross-examination would surely have precipitated. He refused to question Elizabeth.

SAVAGE ATTACK IN DEFENCE.

But the prosecutor made Charles Lee Corby, husband of Helen Powell Corby, Mrs. Carman's neice, contradict his wife. He pulled the testimony of Mrs. Ida Howell, Mrs. Carman's sister, to pieces until the jurymen smiled and nudged each other. And he applied ridicule to the story of Platt Conklin, the accused woman's father, until the latter became angry.

Mr. Smith's most savage cross-examination was directed against Mrs. Powell. He put questions intended to show that Dr. Carman, husband of the defendant, knew that a woman who was in Dr. Carman's waiting room the night of the shooting, had gone to Canada.

Two young women were in the waiting room then and Dr. Carman and his family have maintained they did not know who they were or where they had gone. Mr. Smith had said he had been unable to find either of them.

"Did Dr. Carman tell you that one of these young women wrote to him and said it would ruin her to testify at the first trial?" Mr. Smith asked Mrs. Powell.

"No."

JAP ENVOY READY TO LEAVE PEKIN

War between Japan and China has been averted, according to apparently authentic assurances given in official circles at Tokio today. This news came in cable dispatches from the Japanese capital this afternoon. It is learned that the Chinese government had definitely decided to grant the demands made by the Japanese government, the dispatches say. The news that continued peace between the two Oriental empires is assured caused a demonstration among the Pacificist element in Tokio.

Apparently confirming the news, from Tokio came a dispatch from Pekin, at the same time, saying:

"Following conferences between President Yuan Shi-Kai and his advisers today, strong belief was expressed that the Chinese government was prepared to concede most of the demands of Japan, leaving the balance to arbitration. If this report is true, war has probably been averted."

RUSSIA MASSES TROOPS TO AID JAPS IN CHINA

TIEN TSIN, China, May 7.—The Japanese Minister to China, Eki Hioki, has prepared to leave Pekin.

Japanese troops are being moved toward the Manchurian railway, which connects Pekin with the trans-Siberian system.

Rusian has massed a big army in Mongolia, which would probably invade northern China in co-operation with Japanese forces if war is declared.

DEMONSTRATIONS FOR WAR BY GREAT CROWDS IN TOKIO

By MERRITT F. PRESTON.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

TOKIO, May 7.—Despite the apparent nearness of war between Japan and China over the latter country's refusal to accede to certain economic demands of the Japanese, all the agencies for peace furnished by diplomacy has not been exhausted today. Pacificists hoped that the Japanese ultimatum cabled to Pekin yesterday would furnish the basis for further negotiations which would avert hostilities.

The Japanese War Office was without any confirmation of reports from Manchuria that Chinese and Japanese troops had clashed at Tsinan.

It was reported from Pekin that President Yuan Shi Kai is prepared to make representations to the United States, England and France in an attempt to avert the application of the twenty-four demands made in the Japanese ultimatum.

On the other hand, the Japanese government is confident that it can justify its present stand and is certain that China will receive no encouragement from any power, be it neutral or belligerent.

War demonstrations took place today and great crowds gathered before the government buildings, waving Japanese flags and calling for "action against Japan's enemies."

Fears of an attack against the person of the Chinese minister led the war office to offer an honorary guard of troops for the Chinese legation.

Japan is ready to go to war at an hour's notice. Her fleet and army are upon a war footing and equipped for a vigorous campaign abroad. Should hostilities begin the first point of attack would probably be Mukden, where 50,000 Chinese troops are stationed.

U. S. ANNOUNCEMENT ON CHINA VEILED OFFER TO MEDIATE

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Diplomats today interpreted the announcement of the State Department, explaining the position of the American government relative to the demands of Japan on China as a veiled bid to act as mediator in the dispute.

It was viewed in some quarters as informal notice to the two countries that the United States would not offer its good offices, but would be ready to give its assistance should the two countries desire it.

No explanation was forthcoming of the purpose of making the announcement at this time, Secretary Bryan intimating the document spoke for itself. It was suggested, however, in department circles, that the administration might have sought by it to remove the impression that this government would adopt a passive attitude toward the situation in the far East. This view was based on the declaration in the statement that the United States had no intention of surrendering any of its treaty rights with China, and there had been no abatement of its interest in the welfare and progress of China.

It reiterated also the government's adherence to the open door policy and the territorial integrity of China. It also was hinted that it might forecast some sort of action by the parties to the Hay open door policy.

The report was circulated that informal conferences between these powers already have taken place.

STILL GOING ON IN CHINESE CAPITAL

By LEONARD C. AMES.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PEKIN, May 7.—This city remains calm, despite the momentous events which are impending in the Chinese-Japanese relations. President Yuan Shi Kai conferred with his advisers and is reported to have professed the belief that Japan would modify her demands. However, war preparations are still going on. In any event, it is likely there will be no decisive developments of a hostile character before Sunday. The government is in constant communication with the minister in Tokio.

GOOD FOR 1 ONE VOTE

This coupon will not be counted unless presented at the California Exposition Contest Headquarters, No. 5 Winthrop square, Boston, or mailed to that address on or before 5 o'clock p. m. May 17 1915.

HOW TO SEND VOTE COUPONS—At the end of the third contest period (Series "C") collect all votes of that series, then put all your "Series "C" No. 1" coupons together, tie or fasten them in some manner and attach a slip of paper showing the number of "Series "C" No. 1" coupons contained in that package. Do the same with "Series "C" No. 2" coupons, and the same with "Series "C" No. 3, 4, 5" and so on up to and including "Series "C" No. 15," the last one of that series. Then wrap them all in one bundle and write or stamp on the outside of this bundle your name and address and the number of consecutive sets said to be contained therein. A similar rule applies to the other four series.

AVIATOR HURT IN ASTOR SEAPLANE

Clifford L. Webster, the aviator, was severely cut and bruised when Vincent Astor's new $14,000 hydroaeroplane with Webster and Richard Karman, a mechanic, aboard, crashed into the top of a seawall on Marblehead Neck today.

The hydro's pontoons hit the crest of the seawall, pitching the top of the machine violently forward and downward. Both riders were thrown down on the harbor rocks twelve feet below, the machine diving over after them.

Webster landed on his right side. His right wrist was badly bruised and the hand was cut. His right eye was closed. The right side of his face was cut and scraped and the right side of his body generally sustained minor bruises and bumps.

Karman, the mechanic, landed feet first and escaped unhurt. He assisted Webster from the wreck of the machine.

The lower or so-called "boat part" of the hydro was smashed so it will have to be re-built. The planes and engine were damaged, but can be repaired.

The hydroaeroplane was built for Astor by the Burgess Company of Marblehead, of which W. Starling Burgess, yacht and aeroplane designer, is the head. The young multi-millionaire took his first flying lesson in it on April 27.

On account of the prominence of Mr. Astor and the special design of the hydro there has been more than usual interest in this latest combination air and water craft.

AUSTRIA REJECTS TERMS OF ITALY

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, May 7.—The Italian situation is causing the German government grave anxiety. It was admitted that the situation is serious.

The Austro-German victory in Galicia was expected to have a marked effect on Italy and influence her against joining the allies, but the contrary seems to have happened.

"We shall do well to reckon with the arrival of serious news from Rome," says the Lokal Anzeiger today.

The Frankfurter Zeitung is apparently of the same opinion, but says that "nothing will find Germany and military authorities unprepared."

Dispatches from Athens this afternoon say former President Premier Venizelos, who was forced out of the government because of his insistence that Greece should enter the war on the side of the allies, has been recalled to Athens by King Constantine. This is regarded as an indication that Greece is also contemplating intervention in the great struggle.

REPORT AUSTRIA HAS REJECTED THE TERMS OF ITALY

ROME, May 7.—Dispatches from frontier points state that Austria has rejected the Italian terms and that indications point to war in the immediate future between Italy and the dual monarchy. The newspapers display these dispatches prominently, but the optimism of the German embassy has not diminished.

COE DECLARES HE LOVES WIFE YET

Henry Clark Coe, Jr., who deserted his bride of eight months, two months before she gave birth to their daughter, under circumstances which are cited as proofs of insanity, and who has since issued statements in explanation of his flight which are considered more proof of the same sort, today declares that he still loves his wife.

"I love my wife," dispatches from Fairbanks quote him as saying. "I love my wife and hope some time in the future to be reunited to her.

"I will never liev in the East," he adds. "I want to live in the West. My future is uncertain, but I probably will remain here this summer.

LIKES TO ROAM.

"I do not intend to return East for an indefinite time. My coming to Alaska was not a sudden plan. I thought it all out months before. It was due to personal differences between us, and the only way to settle them was for me to leave.

"The trouble with me is that I like to roam around and work for myself. I have no social inclinations and am therefore in the wrong place at home.

"My folks tried to get me to go to college, but I refused. I have worked for myself and intend to keep doing so.

"I have written to my wife. She should have received the letter a week ago. My folks know where I am and have communicated with me.

"I think it unfair to say too much now which may worry them and my wife."

HAS HAD NO LETTER.

Mrs. Coe, who declares that she has been hounded by morbidly curious who sit on her doorsteps waiting for a glimpse of her when she takes the baby out in the carriage, declares that if Coe has written to her, she has not received the letter.

"I have not written to my husband," she declared today. "When I hear from him directly, then I will be able to decide just what to do. I have received no letter from him. I am afraid that the 'letter' is the same as the 'telegram.' I never received that. I do not believe he sent a letter any more than he telegraphed."

Mrs. Coe reiterated her belief that Coe is insane, and declared that everything he is quoted as saying since he was located in Alaska has added to this belief.

"What can I do?" she asked. "I can't go to Alaska with June. The baby is only six weeks old. It would be fatal to subject an infant so young to the strain of such a journey. All I can do is to wait. I will wait here until I hear directly from him. Then I will know what to do."

TO HAVE SON OBSERVED.

Dr. Henry Clark Coe, father of the run-away Standard Oil salesman, declared in New York today that he believed the interviews with Coe published in the papers here, are fictitious.

"I feel certain that the interviews wired here from Alaska are fictitious," he said. "If they are not fictitious, then it is certain that my son is not in his right mind. I have made arrangements to send persons from Portland, Ore., to see the boy, with the purpose of observing his mental condition. We will know soon the real truth. No efforts will be made to force him to return home against his will. His wife would not desire that.

"There has been no family disagreement. Our relations with the Ainslees and with Mrs. Coe, Jr., have been very friendly and still continue to be."

Merriam Thinks Point of Prayer Missed by Eliot

President-Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard University misses the true use of prayer, according to the editor of The Watchman-Examiner, the Rev. Dr. E. F. Merriam of Boston.

In the current number of that Baptist weekly Dr. Eliot's address before the Baptist ministers of this city, in which he advised them not to pray for peace, has stirred up much comment, and it is the conclusion of many ministers that the former president of Harvard does not understand praying.

Dr. Merriam says: "Dr. Eliot advised the Baptist ministers in a recent address not to pray for peace. What Dr. Eliot meant was that, in his judgment, the war ought not to be settled on the basis of the present standing of the warring forces.

"But the true use of prayer, Dr. Eliot wholly missed. The right use of prayer is not that any belligerent shall prevail, but that the will of God may be done and the slaughter, torture and distress of so many thousands of our fellow-beings may be speedily brought to an end. Dr. Eliot has missed the force of praying."

Dr. Osler on Tuberculosis

Sir William Osler, one of the foremost of living medical men, formerly of Johns Hopkins, Baltimore, and now Regius Professor of Medicine at Oxford, says in his "Practice of Medicine" (1892), on page 240:

"The healing of pulmonary tuberculosis is shown clinically by the recovery of patients in whose sputa elastic tissue and bacilli have been found. * * * In the granulation products and associated pneumonia a scar tissue is formed, while the smaller caseous areas become impregnated with lime salts. To such conditions alone should the term healing be applied."

Many eminent medical authorities have testified to the efficacy of lime salts in the treatment of tuberculosis, and the success of Eckman's Alterative in this and allied throat and bronchial affections may be due partly to the fact that it contains a lime salt so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated.

Widespread use of this remedy in numerous cases of tuberculosis—many of which appear to have yielded completely to it—justifies our belief that it is worth a trial, unless some other treatment already is succeeding. It contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs. We make no promises concerning it any more than reputable physicians give promises with their prescriptions, but we know of many cases in which IT HAS HELPED.

Contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, hence a trial is safe. For sale by all Riker Drug Stores and leading druggists.

THREE OF THE MOST POPULAR PRICES IN OUR

Misses' Late Spring Suits

$12.50 $16.50 $19.75

There is nothing out of the ordinary about any one of these prices. They are what you can pay for suits in pretty nearly every misses' store.

It is what we sell regularly at these prices and what we are featuring particularly this week-end that we would call to the attention of misses who have yet to buy a suit for summer wear.

Comparison made by ourselves and our customers have proven beyond doubt that the suits we are selling at these prices are not equalled in other stores for the money.

In the highest-priced stores it is a fact that suits we sell at these prices are priced and sold for half as much again.

One of Many New Suits, as sketched, at $12.50

MISSES' SERGE SUITS, in tailored model, belted all round, finished with white ball button, circular skirt. Colors, navy, Belgian and check $12.50

One of Many New Suits, as sketched, at $16.50

CHARGE TRENTINI WITH LOVE THEFT

Emma Trentini, "the little devil of light opera," is charged with stealing the affections of Rudolph Friml, the light opera composer, in whose "Peasant Girl" she is starring, while they were in Boston, stopping at the Bellevue. The charge is made in the suit against Trentini for $100,000, filed in New York by Mrs. Rudolph Friml.

While papers in the suit for alleged alienation of affections were being served on Trentini, the composer was being served with the papers in a divorce libel, in which Trentini is named.

Mrs. Friml declares in her suits that while her husband, composer of "The Firefly," "High Jinks" and the "Peasant Girl," in two of which Miss Trentini starred, accompanied the opera companies, leading the orchestra, Trentini won his love. There are named, besides the Boston hotel, the Hotel Statler in Buffalo, the Ritz-Carlton in Philadelphia and hotels in New York.

Friml is a Bohemian. He came to this country about six years ago as accompanist for Kubelik, the violinist. He soon turned his genius to light opera.

Until last November, Friml and his wife lived in an apartment at No. 600 West 169th street, New York. It was in November that Mrs. Friml left him and went to Los Angeles, where she is said to be now. The work of gathering evidence in her two suits was commenced at the time of her departure for the West.

Emma Trentini, who has been admired by thousands of lovers of light opera in Boston, has been known in musical circles as "the little devil of light opera." Until two weeks ago she sang the leading role in "The Peasant Girl."

Anderson Urges Federal Lines

Government ownership and government control of railroads, unless we devise machinery whereby stockholders themselves shall control the property in which they have invested their savings, was called a necessity by United States District Attorney George W. Anderson in an address at the banquet at the Copley Square Hotel of the Civil Engineering Society of the M. I. T.

Mr. Anderson characterized the losses to stockholders of the Boston & Maine and New Haven roads—not less than from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000—as a "pitiful showing."

He diagnosed the malady as a consequence of the small stockholders having no voice as to who should form the directorates.

British Worry Over Mexican Oil Fields

WASHINGTON, May 7.—British Embassy officials here are seriously concerned over the situation in the oil fields of Mexico, upon which the British Navy depends for large quantities of fuel oil. Assurances have reached the State Department from Tampico that no foreign-owned wells had been set afire or otherwise damaged at Panuca, recently captured by the Villa forces. The British Embassy was reassured, but officials fear delays and possibly an attempt at double taxation, as, while Villa troops control the wells, the Gulf terminals at Tampico and Tuxpam are still in Carranza's hands.

Wants Funds Left to Stepmother

A bill in equity seeking to prevent his stepmother, Mrs. Mary A. Lewis of Hamilton, from sharing the $2,000 insurance on the life of his father, the late Roland F. G. Lewis, has been filed in the Superior Court by George F. Lewis of Newburyport. He charges that while his father was too feeble mentally to make a contract his stepmother, by false representations, procured a change in the policy whereby she became a beneficiary.

Marie A. Nolan and C. E. Nally to Wed

The friends of Miss Marie A. Nolan, the Newton amateur actress, were treated with an extra number at a party in the home of Mrs. M. J. Enegess when the latter announced the engagement of her sister, Miss Marie Nolan, to Charles E. Nally, also of Newton.

The young couple are well known to Newtonites, having taken part in several amateur theatricals. Miss Nolan is secretary to Mayor Edwin O. Childs. She was appointed to that position four years ago by ex-Mayor Charles E. Hatfield and at the election of the present Mayor was reappointed.

Isadora Duncan Asks Someone to Go on $12,000 Bond

NEW YORK, May 7.—Miss Isadora Duncan, the dancer, has come to the end of her resources, and unless some one comes to her rescue before Saturday her trunks will be seized and she will be prevented from sailing for Athens with her pupils.

She owes $12,000 and in a remarkable appeal to the American people asks that they come to her rescue and prevent the scandal of a nation haling into the courts an artist whose only offence has been that she has lost her fortune in her country's behalf.

All that she asks is for some one to go on her bond for $12,000, for which as security she will offer her estate in France, valued at 1,000,000 francs.

A COAST-TO-COAST CAMPAIGN NOW ON

The Plant Juice Man Will Be At the Liggett's Store, Corner Washington and Avon Sts.

A coast-to-coast campaign of Plant Juice was inaugurated about three years ago in California. Since that time it has been introduced in all the large cities, from the Golden Gate, across the Rockies, until it has now reached Boston.

Plant Juice has taken the country by storm and has made thousands—yes, tens of thousands—of friends wherever introduced. Plant Juice is Nature's remedy; it is a product of Mother Earth, produced from a combination of medicinal roots, herbs, barks and berries, which act directly on the stomach, liver and kidneys. It makes pure, red, rich blood, strengthens the nerves and tones up the entire system.

The Plant Juice man contends that the brain rules the body, and that the stomach rules the brain, and that any person with a sound stomach can combat three-fourths of the diseases that assail humanity.

This explains the unparalleled success of Plant Juice. It brings perfect health to that much-abused organ, the stomach, and this in turn rids the whole body of these symptoms; acts on the liver and kidneys and banishes rheumatism from the blood.

Any one of the following symptoms may indicate the condition of a deranged stomach: Indigestion, dyspepsia, shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart, belching of wind, fermenting of food, constipation, dizziness, headache, backache, coated tongue, foul breath, lack of energy, or that tired-out, run-down condition.

The Plant Juice man is on hand to meet the Boston public at Liggett's Drug Store, corner Washington and Avon street, where he will introduce and explain the merits of Plant Juice. Free samples given.—Advertisement.

Nine Suspects Rounded Up in Chicago Murder

CHICAGO, May 7.—A general round-up of all possible suspects was ordered today by Chief of Police Healy on account of the murder late yesterday of Mrs. Ella Coppersmith, wife of a wealthy broker, and her two-year-old son, John L. Coppersmith, Jr.

Nine men were arrested early today as answering the description of a man seen in the neighborhood of the Coppersmith home. The police described the murder of the woman and her baby as the most fiendish in Chicago's history.

Mrs. Coppersmith's head was crushed with a hammer and her throat was cut with a butcher knife. The baby had been stabbed three times in the neck. He was found with one hand tightly grasping a white teddy bear, the other holding a crimson ball.

An open purse lay on the floor, the piano had been moved and all the rugs had been turned back as if in a search for valuables. From a purse which had contained between $50 and $60 and several rings, all except one diamond ring had been taken.

Riley Praises English.

HELEN GOULD AT SUNDAY REVIVAL

PATERSON, N. J., May 7.—Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, formerly Miss Helen Gould, is so enthusiastic over the effectiveness of "Billy" Sunday, whom she watched from the Tabernacle platform, that she and her husband have asked the evangelist to visit them at their home.

"He is a wonderful man," declared Mrs. Shepard. "He is a wonderful man, doing a wonderful work. I approve of good work, and I approve of him. I would consider it a great honor if he would visit me at my home."

Mrs. Shepard sat on the platform with Mr. Shepard, listening eagerly to "Billy" Sunday telling what Paterson would do to Jesus if He came to Paterson. Every now and then Mrs. Shepard would lean over toward her husband and whisper, as if emphasizing Sunday's remarks with "That's so," "Isn't that right?" and such remarks.

254 HIT THE TRAIL.

They listened with approval to Sunday's answer to his own query: "If Jesus came to Paterson tonight you would crucify Him!" Sunday shouted. And when the sermon had ended they saw 254 men and women "hit the sawdust trail."

Especially were they interested when Sunday tackled the "business man," saying:

"You business man. Last night you sat in this tabernacle and the appeal of Christ made you uneasy. It was not comfortable to measure your life, your principles and your methods by the life and the principle of Jesus. You left the tabernacle swearing you would never enter it again.

"This morning you entered your private office and turning the key in the lock you said: 'At last I am alone, away from the impertinent questions and the irritating exhortations of preachers. At last I am alone, where I am my only judge, and where I can do with my life as I please.'

PRESENCE WAS THERE.

"But you no sooner had said that than the very air of your private office was quivering with the presence of an unseen guest, and you knew that iron locks could not shut out the appeals and demands of Jesus Christ.

"This unavoidable Christ is with you every moment you think about yourself. You cannot ask the questions, 'from where did I come?' and 'where am I going?' without taking him into account.

"He is with you every time you think about your conduct. He has so thoroughly incarnated all that is right, that it is impossible to think of the two words 'right' and 'wrong' without reckoning with him."

Pedrick Measure Signed by Walsh

Governor Walsh today signed the resolve exempting Sergeant-at-Arms Thomas F. Pedrick from the general law which requires State employes to retire when they reach the age of seventy years. Pedrick will be seventy next February. He has been sergeant-at-arms five years and a legislative attache since 1884. Governor Walsh gave Pedrick the pen with which he signed the resolve.

20 Lbs. of Fish a Year for Each Person in U. S.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Each person in the United States eats on an average twenty pounds of fish a year, the Department of Commerce today estimated. It is declared the American fisheries are a great and valuable source of food supply. The production in 1908, the latest year for which figures are available, amounted to 1,893,000,000 pounds and to these must be added considerable imports.

Tuckerman Badly Hurt by an Auto

E. N. Tuckerman, stenographer to Fred W. Moore, graduate manager of the Harvard Athletic Association, is at the Massachusetts General Hospital, suffering from a scalp wound, a broken collar bone and several broken ribs as the result of being hit by an automobile driven by Miss Alice McDermott of Cambridge in Harvard square.

FOSTER'S FIANCEE KILLED BY FALL

Reginald C. Foster of Boston, the well-known Harvard athlete, has hurried to Chicago, following news of the sudden death of Miss Marion Farwell, to whom he was engaged. Miss Farwell was found at the foot of a deep, sheer-sided ravine on the Lake Forest, Ill., estate of her father, almost on the eve of her wedding to Foster.

Just how she met her death is uncertain. She had been in failing health for some time. The explanation issued by her father, Francis C. Farwell, of Chicago, one of the wealthiest men in that city, is that she must have fainted at the precipitous edge of the deep ravine, falling sixty-five or seventy feet to the rocks at the bottom.

This ravine separates the Farwell from the Cyrus McCormick estate, and is about 300 feet from the Farwell house. The nurse left Miss Farwell for about five minutes. When she returned her charge had disappeared. A search resulted in the discovery of Miss Farwell at the bottom of the gulch. She died before medical aid could be summoned.

The engagement of Foster and Miss Farwell was announced about a year ago. They were to have been married May 19. Last Wednesday, accompanied by her mother and a nurse, Miss Farwell returned to Lake Forest from Tyron, N. C. It had been announced to her friends that she was in somewhat better health than when she had gone South.

It was through "Reggy" Foster's sister that the Harvard athlete first became acquainted with Miss Farwell. The two girls had been classmates at the Farmington School, in Farmington, Ct. Foster was graduated from Harvard in 1911. He had been captain of the varsity track team, and in 1909 was the intercollegiate champion at the 100 and the 220-yard distances.

To Teach Tango to the Hawaiians

BROCKTON, May 7.—Owing to poor health, Miss Susan E. Googins has resigned her position as a teacher in the sixth and seventh grades at the Goddard School, to go to Honolulu, Hawaii, to teach the natives the tango, and other of the modern dances. She plans to start on her 6,000-mile journey soon.

Miss Googins, in addition to her school work, has conducted a dancing school here with great success.

She states she recently received an attractive offer to teach music, dancing and other studies in a private school at Honolulu.

Miss Googins plans to visit the Panama exposition at San Francisco on her trip to Honolulu.

WHAT WILL IT COST TO VISIT THE PANAMA EXPOSITIONS?

This is the question which is interesting many people as the annual vacation season approaches. There are doubtless thousands of persons in Boston and elsewhere, both men and women, who desire to visit the Expositions at San Francisco and San Diego and see something of the scenic beauties en route to and from California, and whose time and money are limited.

The cost of a Rock Island Circle Scenic Tour may not be large. For a surprisingly small sum one can make the trip in fifteen days, going first-class all the way with fairly liberal allowance for side trips to points of interest, admission to the Expositions, etc.

You have the choice of several famous trains, including the "Golden State Limited," "Rocky Mountain Limited," "Californian," "Colorado-California Express." Automatic block signals. Finest modern all-steel equipment. Superb dining car service.

Our representatives are travel experts. They will be glad to furnish you with authentic literature from which you can readily estimate the cost of a trip. BARNES' PAPER GOT COMMISSION

SYRACUSE, May 7.—When court convened today in the Barnes-Roosevelt libel trial Charles M. Winchester, vice-president and general manager of the J. B. Lyon Company, was recalled to tell of relations between his company and William Barnes' Albany Journal Company.

Winchester produced certain cancelled checks showing payments by the Lyon company to the Journal company, but he said he could not find the check stubs, requested by Bowers when the witness was excused two days ago.

Winchester also had books of the Lyon company showing the annual settlements with the Journal company by the Lyon company from 1903 to 1912. He also produced Lyon company ledgers showing transactions between the Barnes Journal company and the Lyon company. It became apparent that the Roosevelt defence would not be completed this week when Bowers asked Winchester to return on Monday with further documentary exhibits.

WANTED TO EXPLAIN.

Winchester wanted permission to make an explanation.

"There are certain official printing jobs not given under contract," said Winchester. "They are given out by the departments and legislative officers. When we did such work which had been obtained by the Journal Company we gave the Journal a trade discount."

"Did you ever," asked Justice Andrews, "pay to the Journal company commissions on State contracts obtained by you?"

"No, sir," said Winchester.

"Did you pay the Journal company commissions on Albany city and county printing for which you had the contract?"

"No, sir," replied the witness.

ADMITS PAYMENT.

"Did you," demanded Bowers, "bill the State, city and county directly for work done by you, then pay the Journal a commission?"

"Yes," was the answer.

On re-cross-examination Winchester told of a conversation with Barnes in which he said Barnes, as a stockholder in the Lyon company, told Winchester that on work done by the Lyon company he should bill the Journal company direct and not collect from the State, city or county.

Winchester admitted that Barnes discussed with him the methods to be employed by the Lyon company in doing State printing work obtained by the Journal company.

REYNOLDS URGES NEWSPAPER 'ADS'

NEW YORK, May 7.—That newspapers are "unquestionably the standard form of advertising," that advertising should be increased instead of diminished on account of the war, and that business throughout the country is improving are among the assertions in a statement sent out by R. J. Reynolds, founder and president of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company of Winston-Salem, N. C.

"Business throughout the entire land," stated Reynolds, is improving—very much faster than the pessimists dare to admit.

"This company thought enough of advertising as a selling medium not to retrench in this direction when the European war broke out. As a matter of fact, more money was appropriated for advertising than we would otherwise have expended. As a result, we are doing the largest business in our history.

"Newspapers and magazines have constituted the backbone of all our advertising.

"I believe a manufacturer who has a good product with which he can make a popular appeal, and who will tell the truth about it in the daily newspapers, and is backed with a good selling organization, will make an unqualified success. I have had ample experience with this form of advertising to prove, beyond any doubt, that newspapers are unquestionably the standard form of advertising."

'THE LAST LAUGH' AT CORT THEATRE

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

An author who starts with a fresh idea and works it out with average success for two acts has only himself to blame if he falters and stumbles in his finishing touches. That is about the way it must have struck last night's audience at the Cort Theatre, where Paul Dickey and Charles W. Goddard tried to make you see the funny side of a surgeon's operating room and a supposedly hand-picked human creation in the shape of a male figure.

Whether you will concede the good taste of turning surgical instruments and ghastly operations into farcical entertainment, or question it, doesn't matter so much in the case of "The Last Laugh," because the situations developed by its brace of authors made you laugh in spite of yourself—so we must assume that perhaps it wasn't as bad as it seemed.

At any rate, you were given a new idea for consideration, and if your sense of humor was not touched by Dr. Bruce's home-made human monster it is high time you consulted a specialist. Dr. Bruce, by the way, whom you first believed crazy, turned out to be a spirited practical joker, for the Frankenstein monster he planned to create was none other than his own chauffeur, Mike, rolled in cotton bandages and well rehearsed in his part.

TROUBLE BEGINS.

The trouble began when the doctor's family and medical associates began to suspect the state of his reason, and fearing a mental collapse if his experiment failed, dragged another innocent man into the scheme at the last minute and substituted him for Mike, who was unceremoniously dropped into the rubbish box.

It will be seen that Dr. Bruce didn't have a chance in the world of going wrong, although his friends who produced a live specimen for him to work upon were ignorant of his previous arrangements with Mike.

Naturally, under all these circumstances, the operation was successful and a man-made creature was brought to life, causing much trouble and inconvenience for those concerned in his appearance in the doctor's family, but that disorder was nothing compared to the subsequent disturbance when Mike, resenting being cast away in the rubbish box, stepped forth.

Out of all this "The Last Laugh" settled down to more or less conventional farce, devoted principally to wild running, some shouting and a full measure of wordy dialogue. If the twin authors had kept their third act up to the standard set by the first and second they would have rounded out a consistent farce, but in the final settlement their characters got out of their reach and ran into confusion.

CARRIES THE LOAD.

Edward Abeles, as the substituted human creature, carried most of the load. Swathed in bandages he perspired through the three acts and made you see the funny side of an operating room without shocking you. Mr. Abeles did not lose himself at any time during the performance, although there were many opportunities for slipping.

Henry Harmon played Dr. Bruce consistently and got what he was looking for all through the play—the last laugh. Inez Plummer made a charming nurse for the "creation," and Stephen Maley, a character actor who never fails, made more out of Bosco, a superstitious darkey, than his part deserved.

"The Last Laugh" was also a long, exhilarating laugh.

What to Put in the Dinner Pail

Put this in your dinner pail: three bread and butter sandwiches, two hard boiled eggs, ginger snaps and a pint of cold tea with milk and sugar.

This is the contents of the model dinner pail recommended by Miss Gretchen McMullen, of the Roxbury Neighborhood House, at the exhibition today of the New England Home Economics Association in rooms of the Twentieth Century Club.

For the mill or shop girl this food is recommended: Two minced beef sandwiches, three olives, an orange and vanila wafers.

"I have looked carefully into the needs of the workingman and working girl," said Miss McMullen. "The list I have given ought to be varied from time to time. There is nothing like putting variety into the dinner pail. Many wives do not vary what goes into the dinner pail and this is important.

"I would recommend that the food of the dinner pails be as carefully studied as the regular meals of the household. It is very essential that the workingman should have the best that money can buy for that pail."

Mother Tells of $100,000 Offer for Baby Girl

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., May 7.—"There isn't money enough in the world to buy our baby," declared twenty-year-old Mrs. Howard Gray of Roaring Branch as, with eyes full of mother love, she watched her two-year-old daughter for whose adoption John Mock, brother-in-law of Charles Schwab, the steel magnate, had offered $100,000.

"We wouldn't think of parting with her," said the mother, "but I felt sorry for Mr. Mock, who is such a nice man, when I saw how much in earnest he was.

"When he saw Vivian soon after his arrival he seemed to become captivated with her and she with him.

WANT GYPSY MOTH AREAS EXTENDED

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Extension of the quarantine territory in New England against the gypsy moth was advocated by experts from Massachusetts and other States at a hearing at the Department of Agriculture. The belief prevails that this recommendation will be adopted.

Among those at the conference were A. F. Burgess, in charge of the gypsy moth quarantine in Massachusetts; D. M. Rogers, an active worker in Massachusetts; L. H. Worthley, engaged in scout work in the State; I. W. Davis, assistant entomologist in Connecticut; W. C. O'Kane, Deputy Commissioner of Agriculture of New Hampshire, and Henry B. Weiss of New Jersey.

'Wife Got Home at 2 a. m. Just Like Any Man'

BROCKTON, May 7.—Because his wife is not afraid of the dark he wants a divorce, Luther T. Page told Judge Brown in the Superior Court. Because Luther, while protesting love for her, admitted "another lady had his goat," as Mrs. Page testified, she wants her freedom.

"She would come home at 2 o'clock in the morning just as coolly as a man would," Page said. Once she struck him on the elbow with a pitcher, he said. Far from retaliating, he wept. He denied being friendly with a woman neighbor.

Many a morning at 2 o'clock, Mrs. Page declared, her husband forced her to leave their home in Wareham clad only in her night clothes, so that she had to walk thus to the home of her parents, two miles away.

New Submarine Has Exceeded All U. S. Requirements

The new United States submarine L-1, built at the Fore River yards, Quincy, has practically completed her government trials off Provincetown, declare officers of the Electric Boat Company, which built her.

It is claimed she exceeded the speed requirement of fifteen knots on the surface and seven knots submerged and successfully made her dive of 200 feet. In a dive of sixty feet, with the trial board as passengers, she is reported to have made ten and one-half knots. She fired torpedoes from her forward tubes, both on the surface and submerged. She will have her twenty-four-hour run trial in Boston harbor.

GREAT RUSSIAN CARPATHIAN ARMY IMPERILLED BY TEUTONIC ADVANCE

Capture of Tarnow Severe Blow to Russians in West Galicia.

LONDON, May 7.—The fall of Tarnow to the Austrians is claimed by Vienna today, together with the occupation of the old Russian positions east of the Dunajec River.

According to Vienna the great battle still in progress in the Jaslo and Dukla regions, will complete the annihilation of the Third Russian army.

The Austrians claim to have taken 50,000 prisoners, and 1,500,000 Russians are reported imperiled by the Austro-German successes.

Military experts consider Tarnow the key to the entire Galician campaign. The Wal mountains to the south, commanding Tarnow, was strongly fortified by the Russians because of the city's strategic importance, dominating, as it does, the railway that runs from Lewberg through Permysl (Przemysl) to Cracow, connected by branch lines with the Russian system.

According to Berlin and Vienna, the Austro-German victory proceeds "with precise regularity," the Russians being driven across the Wisloka River, the Dukla Pass being brought within Teutonic control and Lupkow Pass attacked from two directions.

Although Petrograd formally denies a great Germanic victory in Galicia, the Russian statement is unsatisfactorily non-committal on many points, declaring the battle continues with great obstinacy, and that the Russians "were severely tried owing to the superiority of the enemy's heavy artillery."

Confidence is expressed by headquarters in Vienna that the principal portion of the Russian army under General Radko Dimitrieff, which is attempting to defend positions in the Carpanthians to the west of Lupkow Pass, cannot make good its retreat.

"Detachments may work their way out, but it is declared that the bulk of the army, with the heavy artillery and baggage, can scarcely succeed in avoiding capture, in view of Field Marshal Von Hoetzendorf's rapid advance through the Gorlice breach in the lines," says a Vienna dispatch.

"Progress in the northern half of the front is slower. The Russians held desperately to Tarnow and Wal Mountain, a fortified city 1,500 to 2,000 feet high between the Biala and Dunajec Rivers, to enable them to get great quantities of stores accumulated behind Tarnow away and cover the retirement of the armies to the southward.

USE 16-INCH GUNS.

"The question as to whether the Russians can make a successful stand on the line of the Wisloka River is the important one from the Austro-German military viewpoint. If they cannot it is considered that the breach in the Russian line is complete and the situation for the Russian Carpathian armies will undoubtedly be critical.

"The heaviest artillery has been employed in these operations. The 42 centimeter mortars in action were, however, not the noted German guns, but of Austrian make. They were designed originally for coast defence purposes, but have been found exceedingly valuable for land warfare. They fire projectiles 650 pounds heavier than the German mortar and are understood to be comparatively mobile and quickly set up.

"The effect of these mortars during the artillery preparations for battle is described as overpowering. Shells from them reach the supply depots behind Tarnow. The Austrians are also equipped with highly effective smaller howitzers of a new type, which were put into the field during the later stage of the war."

The Wisloka River, which the Austrians claim to have crossed, is well to the east of the Dunajec River, which, until a few days ago, formed part of the Russian front.

In all, the Germans claim to have taken 40,000 prisoners since the offensive was undertaken last Saturday night. The Austrians put the number at more than 50,000.

GERMAN ACTIVITY AT SOISSONS MAY MEAN DRIVE AGAINST PARIS

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, May 7.—Aerial scouts of the allies report that the Germans are massing strong reinforcements on the Soissons front with the evident intention of beginning an offensive movement in that region.

The German lines at Soissons lie nearer to Paris than at any other point, being only forty miles distant. It is possible that the German general staff has not yet given up hope of launching another drive against Paris.

The great battle between the Germans and allies on the Ypres front in West Flanders has resolved itself into an artillery duel, it is stated in an official communique issued by the French War Office today. Another violent artillery duel is raging on the Vauquois front.

German troops attempted to storm the French position at Bagatelle, in the Argonne, last night, but the attack broke down.

HEAVY BOMBARDMENT DEMORALIZED RUSSIAN FORCES IN GALICIA

By FREDERICK WERNER,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

BERLIN, May 7.—The Russian army in Western Galicia, between the Carpathians and the Vistula River, which was defeated by the Austro-German forces under General Von Mackenzen with heavy losses, was first demoralized by a heavy bombardment, such as the British launched against the Germans at Neuve Chapelle before making infantry attacks. An official statement giving details of the first stages of the battle was issued here today. It says:

"The Russians were completely taken by surprise. Our concentration of troops had been completed on April 30. Our airmen and artillery were favored with fine weather and dry roads, enabling them to display their full activity.

"On May 1 we began to bombard the Russian positions, which, during the preceding five months, had been considerably strengthened. As many as seven lines of trenches had been dug by them at some important points.

"During the night preceding the attack our infantry had seized positions close to the enemy's lines.

"All through the night of May 1 our artillery maintained a slow fire against the enemy's trenches, enabling our engineers to cut the wire entanglements of the Russians. At 6 o'clock on the morning of May 2 we opened an overwhelming artillery fire over a front of many miles which continued without interruption for four hours. About 10 a. m. our columns stormed the enemy's position.

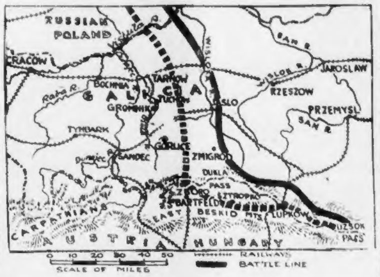
"The Russians, demoralized by the severe bombardment, offered little resistance at many points and fled in disorder. At some places the resistance to our advance was not worth mentioning. By evening we had taken the first and second lines and on May 2 the main positions of the Czar's forces had been penetrated.

"At this time our troops had advanced ten miles and had taken at least 20,000 prisoners, many dozens of guns, about fifty machine guns and a great quantity of other war material."

Toronto Theatre Burned.

TORONTO, Ont., May 7.—The Princess Theatre was destroyed by fire early today. The loss has not been learned, but scenery valued at $12,000 and theatrical effects were burned.

Map showing how Russian battle line has been forced back in Galicia. Dotted lines mark former front in Carpathians; black line the position now occupied by the Czar's troops.



Constantinople Is Bombarded From the Air

By International News Service.

ATHENS, May 7.—Three Russian aviators, operating from the Russian Black Sea fleet, flew over Constantinople, bombarding the city from the air, according to dispatches received here today. Great damage is believed to have been inflicted.

Shells fired from Russian warships against the Turkish forts upon the Bosphorus fell within ten miles of the Turkish capital.

The annihilation of a battalion of the allies' troops by Turks in the fighting on the Dardanelles is announced in the following statement from Constantinople today:

"In the Dardanelles fighting an enemy battalion was annihilated on May 5. As a result of our attacks against the allies' left wing near Avi Burnu, part of their strong entrenchments were taken. More than 100 rifles and one machine gun were taken.

"In operations on the night of May 5 against Sedd-el-Bahr, the Turks inflicted heavy losses upon the English. Three machine guns and a quantity of ammunition were captured. Altogether we captured ten machine guns."

The Turkish line of communication between Smyrna and the Dardanelles over which the Turks were transporting troops, guns and supplies has been cut by the destruction of a railway bridge by a British aviator operating from the Anglo-French fleet.

The allied troops are reported to have captured the heights facing Souain Dere Fort on the Gallopoli peninsula. These heights lie four miles west of Kilid Bahr and their possession promises the speedy reduction of Souain Dere Fort, which covers Kilid Bahr.

AUSTRIANS CREDIT RUSSIAN DEFEAT TO VON HOETZENDORF

By STEVEN BURNETT,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

VIENNA, May 7.—Credit for the military plans which resulted in the defeat of the Russians in western Galicia is given to Field Marshal Baron Conrad von Hoetzendorf, chief of the Austrian General Staff, in a semi-official statement given out here today. Archduke Frederick, Archduke Carl Francis Joseph, heir to the Austrian throne, Field Marshal von Hoetzendorf and his staff all went to the front on a special train and witnessed the victory.

The Austro-German forces advanced over an extended front, the like of which had never before been known in history. The bombardment of the Austro-Germans was of unprecedented fury. Four hundred cannon were trained upon one point on the Russian line, firing in salvos that jarred the mountains like earthquake shocks.

The northern end of the Teuton allies' battle front was held by Austrian and Hungarian troops, the southern end by Germans, Austrians and Hungarians.

"Regiments, brigades and divisions melted away under our artillery fire," says the statement. "All the generals and staff officers of one reserve division were killed and wounded. Escape was impossible."

It is reported that the Austro-German forces have occupied Tarnow, the capture of which was announced yesterday by the Austrian War Office.

Hot Water Routs Buck Burglar

PACKERVILLE, Ct., May 7.—Arthur Bassett was awakened by a peculiar noise in his cellar. At first he thought a burglar was trying to get in the upper part of the house. Arming himself with a shotgun, he went to the cellar, where he found a buck munching away at a box of apples. He finally drove the buck out by buckets of hot water.

Result for Time Uncertain, Warns British Expert

Boston American and London Times Exclusive Cable Service.

LONDON, May 7.—A military expert of the London Times says:

"There is need for great coolness and courage at the present juncture since the war in all theatres is on the point of attaining its maximum violence, and very hard blows are about to be interchanged. Germany and her allies have not less than 4,000,000 men in the field, and have reserves numerically adequate to keep the ranks full for many months.

"We have a superiority of force in the aggregate and a good chance of securing very soon assistance from valiant States hitherto neutral, but the superior resources of the allies have not yet been fully translated into military force, so fighting must be hard and the result for a time uncertain."

RUSSIANS GIVE THE TEUTON LOSSES SINCE MAY 1 AS 60,000 MEN

By FRANCIS LAVELLE MURRAY,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PETROGRAD, May 7.—With a great battle raging between the Carpathians and the Vistula, where the Russians retired to positions which they had previously fortified, the Germans have assumed the offensive at a number of points in Poland with the evident hope of preventing Grand Duke Nicholas from shifting reinforcements into western Galicia.

Some of the troops of the vast Austro-German army which was massed on the Dunajec River are at grips with the Russians south of Jaslo, while others were sent toward the northeast to attack the strong Russian positions on the heights commanding Tarnow.

The Austro-German forces south of Jaslow are engaged in a strategic movement of great importance, for they are trying to cut off and encircle the Russians in the region of Lupkow and Dukla passes.

Thanks to the efficient service of the Russian air scouts, the movement of General von Mackensen's men in this direction was anticipated.

As a result of their attacks in close formation over exposed places the Austro-German forces have lost heavily in Galicia since the battle began on May 1. At least 60,000 Germans and Austrians have fallen, it is estimated in dispatches from Przemysl. Foreign Minister Sazonoff has given the following interview to the Petrograd correspondent of the Petit Parisien of Paris:

"The diplomatic situation in the Triple Entente is excellent. The governments of the three powers are thoroughly in accord. We contemplate the future full of confidence. Russia, France and England will continue the war until we are able to dictate our own terms of peace."

High School Girl Quits Home to Be Red Cross Nurse

NEW HAVEN, Ct., May 7.—Lillian Fenwick of Sound Beach is believed to have left home to go to the Franco-Belgian war fields. She had saved $200 to cover her expenses, and left a note advising her father not to hunt for her.

Most of her friends knew of her ambition to become a war nurse.

Turtles Sent by Mail Now Held in Butte Postoffice

BUTTE, Mont., May 7.—Postoffice officials are caring for two turtles that were sent into the Butte terminal by a railway postal clerk in accordance with the parcel post rules.

The only live things that may be sent by parcel post are bees, and they must be sent in a special carton.

Now the Butte officials are watching over pets that were sent from the Atlantic Coast to a town in Washington. They are feeding the turtles with peanuts, bread and water.

"A Mile of Travel for a Dollar of Trade"

Education—Recreation—Inspiration
The Door to a New Life Is Opened by
NEW ENGLAND
Trade-Travel Coupons

Travel is a wonderful education. It is also a recreation. New scenes, new faces, new interests—how refreshing and inspiring they are. Even if only a short trip be taken every week, the change is strikingly beneficial. It brings you back with a new zest for life and for work.

And think of the healthful advantages of getting out into the country or down to the seashore for a weekly outing. Fresh air, outdoor play, the beauty of Nature—what a wonderful thing for yourself and family.

New England Trade-Travel Coupons have put trips like these within the reach of everybody, WITHOUT COST. You need consider no longer the expense of transportation—Trade-Travel Coupons give you the transportation FREE.

Trade-Travel Coupons are given to you by the dealers with whom you trade. You receive them from department store, furniture, hardware, clothing and cigar dealers, from your grocer, market man, ice and coal dealers and practically every other class of merchant from whom you buy. You receive these Coupons absolutely free as a reward for steady patronage, for cash purchases and prompt payments of bills. You pay no more for what you get—these coupons are an extra bonus—YOU RECEIVE THAT MUCH GREATER VALUE BY DEALING WITH THE LIBERAL, PROGRESSIVE MERCHANTS WHO GIVE TRADE-TRAVEL COUPONS.

Remember that Trade-Travel Coupons are good for transportation anywhere, any time, at the rate of a mile of travel for a dollar of trade. Coupons range in denomination down to those given with a 5-cent purchase, so you can get them for practically every cent you spend.

You can have your coupons redeemed week by week or save them for a long trip. You can travel by trolley, steamship or train.

Now speak to your own dealers about this plan. Ask them to give you New England Trade-Travel Coupons. Write to us for an interesting booklet, "What Trade-Travel Means to You," containing full details of the plan. Needle Appears After 8 Years in Body of Woman

PAWTUCKET, R. I., May 7.—Mrs. Minnie Greenwood of No. 22 Broadway felt a tickling in her right shoulder today, investigated and found half a needle sticking out from the flesh. Eight years ago she stepped on a needle, which broke in two, half of it remaining in her foot, but causing her no trouble. Mrs. Greenwood is sure that the half-needle which appeared today has just completed an eight-year journey from her foot to her shoulder.

HARVARD HAS DEBATE TONIGHT

The annual freshman triangular debate between Harvard, Yale and Princeton will take place this evening at 8 o'clock. The Harvard freshmen will meet Princeton 1918 in the new lecture hall; Harvard 1918 will debate with Yale 1918 in the Lampson Lyceum at New Haven, and the Yale freshmen will meet the Princeton freshmen at Princeton. The victory will go to the college winning both of its debates on the subject, "Resolved, That the United States should abolish the Monroe Doctrine as part of its foreign policy."

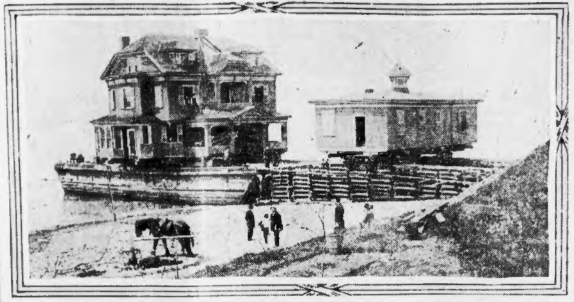
House and Stable Make Safe Sea Trip

Moved from Winthrop to Point of Pines



Winthrop house and stable moved by water, making ten-mile journey from Winthrop to the Point of Pines

Neptune and All the Warring Nations Observe Period of Strict Neutrality.

The old house groaned,
As it came ashore;
"I never was moved
Such a way before;
And I'm thankful quite,
That I wasn't seen,
By the periscope
Of a submarine."
—Gas Buoy "Poet."

The fine old Munroes mansion moved today from Winthrop Centre section of Winthrop over to Point of Pines, via the Atlantic Ocean.

For a landlubber the mansion stood its first sea trip wonderfully well. Any tendency to seasickness it may have suffered was shown only by an occasional squeak or creak of protesting timbers. The mansion's stable "also ran."

The voyage was made safely on the big lighter Villi, which kept strictly within the three-mile limit all the way.

Considering the highly uncertain condition of navigation on the sea these days, with war zones and submarines and floating mines and other belligerent bric-a-brac all about, the Villi and its architectural cargo were considered fortunate.

The relief at Lloyd's when the underwriters heard that the Villi had arrived intact is said to have beggared description.

The sea voyage began on the high tide at 5 o'clock in the morning and was ended at 8:10. This made a total of 3 hours 10 minutes for the ten miles, which was called remarkably good going.

SHOWS REAL SPEED.

It was a real burst of speed, compared with all past performances of the Munroe mansion. For years and years, ever since it was built, the house had never moved an inch.

On April 14 preparations were begun to lower it forty feet down a cliff side. The house moved down at the cautious pace of four feet a day. But when it got into the nautical stretch of the Atlantic Ocean the mansion "threw in the high speed" and broke all records.

Seriously speaking, it was quite a moving. The house is a two and one-half story structure, which stood for years on Court road, Winthrop Centre. Fred J. Daggett bought the house and land and sold the house and stable to Thomas J. Giblin, who arranged to move both structures to the Point of Pines by the all-water route.

The house backed up on a forty-foot cliff overlooking the beach. A crib-work of railroad ties was built up to the level of the house foundations and the building was rolled out on it. Then the crib-work was removed and the house was lowered four feet a day until it rested on the beach. A lighter was grounded in front of the house and the structure, with the stable tagging along behind, was rolled forward on the lighter. All was ready for the sea trip at high tide this morning.

OVER DEER ISLAND ROUTE.

The two tugs started the lighter moving, with its house and stable burden. The novel tow was hauled around Deer Island, up by the Brewsters and Graves Light, thence straight up the North Shore to Lynn Bay and the Saugus River, until it was opposite the selected destination at Point of Pines, when the lighter was anchored at high tide limit.

All that remained then was to wait for the tide to go out, leaving the lighter, house and stable high on the Point of Pines beach. The distance from lighter to its lot is 400 feet, which means a simple task of rolling the house and stable up the beach.

The last leg of the journey, from lighter to lot, is considered easy, compared with the house trip down the cliff and across the water.

An Unusual Question Opened for Discussion in the SUNDAY AMERICAN'S "BILLY" SUNDAY SUPPLEMENT

MRS. YOUNG LAUDS CLEAN-UP RESULT

Mrs. Frank L. Young, who was chosen active chairman of the Boston clean-up campaign, sees a great advance over last year and declares many sections of the city are having a thorough house cleaning.

"The best piece of work done, I believe," she says, "is what the South End Improvement Association has accomplished through the hiring of an army of unemployed. These men have been clearing out private alleys and receiving pay for their labor at the rate of twenty cents an hour.

"Not for years have the South End alleys looked as they do now," declared Mrs. Young. "The men have worked harmoniously and faithfully, and effected a splendid improvement.

"The whole city has joined in a great co-operative movement to clean up and by the fifteenth, when the campaign ends, results will be evident that should win all doubters to the clean-up cause.

"But I am glad to find a growing dissatisfaction with a single clean-up week. Letters are coming in requesting that one day each month be set aside for carting away rubbish not usually taken in city teams, such as old mattresses, cut grass, and similar material.

"A notable achievement has been accomplished by Mrs. Robert I. Bradley, who, with the assistance of seven rat-catching firms, has demonstrated the possibility of ridding Boston of rodents."

Mrs. Young said the Boston School Board was at first against the children taking any part in the clean-up campaign, but after hearing the committee's side reconsidered their action and have since co-operated with the movement.

"Boy scouts have done valiant work, as have many of the women's organizations," she added. "The Women's Municipal League has exerted itself to bring about a clean city and is responsible for a large part of all activities."

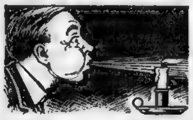
Eczema? A Torture Quickly Banished

Remarkable Results Follow the Action of a Famous Remedy.



The action of S. S. S., the famous blood remedy, is a wave of health from the stomach to every other part of the body.

Any skin disease, no matter what its name, be it eczema, acne, lupus, or just plain boils, pimples or a stubborn abscess, must give way to the influence of S. S. S. Why so? Simply because there is in S. S. S. certain medicinal influences just as essential to blood health as are the elements of the grains, meats, fats and sugars of our daily food. Get a bottle today of any druggist and then write to the Medical Adviser, The Swift Specific Co., 111 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. He will tell you about skin affliction, such as you never before realized. He will clear up the mystery of why certain diseases of the blood make straight for the skin. He will also clear up your doubts as to the nature, cause and proper care of yourself in any form of blood trouble. His advice is perfectly free. There is scarcely a community in the U. S. but where you will find someone to enthusiastically tell you how they are now cured but at one time were sufferers from rheumatism, or catarrh, or some severe form of skin or blood trouble. Get a bottle of S. S. S. today, but refuse any and all substitutes.

A Strength, Flesh and Body Builder For Spring

Run Down, Underweight People Put on Ten to Twenty Pounds of Healthy Flesh.

Most people show a tendency to lose weight in winter. The fat making material in the foods they eat which at other seasons keep flesh and weight at normal is partially diverted in cold weather and instead is used to furnish heat for the body. Then most of us acquire coughs, colds or the grippe which tear down flesh, lower vitality, cause a considerable loss in weight and leave us in a rundown condition in the spring.

Any material loss of weight should be regarded with alarm and prompt measures taken to regain the lost flesh. A splendid body builder and flesh producer is found in a preparation known as Sargol, which can be found at druggists everywhere and which seldom fails to give the user a weight increase of from ten to twenty pounds within a few weeks. Sargol does not of itself make flesh. It is a small tablet which readily dissolves in the stomach and, mixing with the fats, sugars and starches of the food you eat, [illegible] these flesh making materials into a form where the blood can easily absorb and distribute them throughout the body. It is really amazing how quickly and easily lost flesh and weight return when Sargol is used with your meals. With returning normal weight comes too a corresponding return of health, spirits, ambition and vitality and you soon feel your old self again. Leading druggists everywhere sell and recommend Sargol and every package contains a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Caution—While Sargol is also widely used for overcoming nervous dyspepsia and general stomach troubles its action in increasing weight is so practically certain that its use is not recommended to those who are not willing to put on [illegible].

"$20,000 Verdict Too Little Tresses Worth a Million"

Mrs. Matthew Paul, Boston model, who is amazed that girl should accept $20,000 for loss of hair

What is the worth of a lock of hair?

Poets through the ages have discussed this question, and Kipling is the only one on record who ever openly decried woman's crowning beauty. "A rag and a bone, and a hank of hair," he sang.

But now a New York jury has awarded to sixteen-year-old Mary Hayes of Brooklyn $20,000 for the loss of her hair.

'GIGANTIC FLEET' TO ATTACK U. S.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—When the vessels of the Atlantic fleet pass out of New York Harbor May 18, after review by President Wilson, to begin a war game they will face the problem of defending the coast from Cape Hatteras to Eastport, Maine, against bombardment or a possible landing by "the enemy."

Admiral Fletcher with the fleet proper will undertake defence of the coast against "the enemy" under Rear Admiral Beatty, the defenders being known as "blues" and the attackers as "reds."

The game will be on a larger scale than any ever before played by the American navy. The umpire will be Rear Admiral Knight, president of the War College, who will observe the operations from the cruiser Brooklyn.

One of the most remarkable pieces of machinery ever placed in an automobile factory is the steel fender stamping machine, the largest in the world, now being installed in the new Studebaker stamping and enameling plant at Detroit. It represents an investment of over $20,000, and weighs 200,000 pounds. It requires sixty horse power to operate. The universal demand for Studebaker automobiles this season, as evidenced by the fact that practically the entire output of 1915 models has been marketed, will be met by larger production next season with this machine playing an important part.

SYNOPSIS.

Professor Miles Stilliter writes to his friend Gordon Barclay, millionaire, asking his help in an effort to preach the gospel of efficiency and [illegible] United States, and suggesting that this gospel must come through a woman as a heaven-sent messenger. Barclay agrees, provided the woman is [illegible] from heaven [illegible].

Stilliter and the nurse retained by him, with the little Amesbury girl who is to be spirited away.

By Gouverneur Morris and Charles W. Goddard

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

IN his rags and pain Professor Stilliter almost dropped her. He snatched his bitten hand from her mouth, and she began to scream at the top of her lungs, to struggle and kick and to make herself limp between times. And once she twisted clean away from the arm [illegible] around the waist.

Still she was [illegible] and Tommy saved her. He came [illegible] shower of [illegible] and bleeding from an altercation with a green briar. Professor Stilliter did not at once realize that he was only being attacked by a small boy.

He let go of the little girl completely, then tried to catch her as he realized the calibre of his assailant. In so doing, his attention, momentarily diverted, he received a savage kick on the ankle bone and something like twenty-five blows upon the head and face. During this assault Professor Stilliter's glasses were knocked from his nose.

It was as if, for his sins, some supernatural power had struck him stone blind.

The children did not stay to watch the blinded man's efforts toward recovering his glasses, and long before he had done so they were safe in the house. Once Stilliter came into violent contact with a tree trunk, and such was his fury at the turn of events that he was not a pleasant sight to look upon. After recovering his glasses, however, his first action proved him the man of science. From a small pocket medicine case he produced a small bottle containing tincture of iodine. With this he cauterized the bleeding tooth-marks which the little Amesbury girl had left on his fingers.

That night about 12 o'clock nurse's bed in the little Amesbury girl's room was empty. The house was in darkness, except for the kitchen. From this came sounds of revelry and of a talking machine. The little Amesbury girl dreamed that a man with immense black-rimmed eyes was bending over her, and she waked with a scream.

For once in her life she had dreamed true, for Professor Stilliter was bending over her, and the fingers of his left hand were clasped almost chokingly about her baby throat. In his right hand he held before her eyes a lump of rock crystal the size and shape of a hen's egg.

The crystal appeared to exercise an instant fascination upon her. She forgot that she was afraid, and that she wanted to scream for help. She even forgot the presence of Professor Stilliter. She thought, indeed, that she was all alone, and that somebody had opened a door through which she was at liberty to look into fairyland.

Very far away she heard a voice that said very quietly: "Now you can't scream!"

Of course, she tried to, and found that she couldn't.

"And now," said the voice, "you can't do anything unless I tell you to. Get up!" She slipped obediently out of bed

What the Eyebrows Show

Some of the Characteristics They Indicate

DO the eyebrows indicate the traits of our disposition and temperament?

The following are some of the [illegible] said to be indicated by the eyebrows.

The mouth that discloses the teeth but not the gums may testify to a trustworthy and sincere [illegible] and his or her slow steps may en[illegible] [illegible]lence. But when the [illegible] may be certain [illegible] sincere nature is ex[illegible] enough such [illegible]neously been held [illegible] disposition [illegible] invariably show a [illegible] and thick and bushy ones indicate the existence of a highly vitalized temperament together with [illegible] endurance. In [illegible] unusual powers of [illegible] bodily endurance [illegible] Highly arched eyebrows denote a very sensitive temperament, but contrary to general opinion they do not always adorn a person of superior intellect.

Long drooping eyebrows, wide apart on the forehead, signify the possession of a joyous disposition and general amiability. But if the eyebrows are lighter in color than the hair of the head a distinctly weak bodily vitality is indicated.

Lightly marked eyebrows that lie high above the nose show a temperament inclined towards indolence and a general weakness of character.

Dark eyebrows, that lend so strong and energetic an expression to the whole face, are indicative of patience.

Singularly the average eyebrow is a combination of black and red—that is to say, it indicates patience and the desire to rise in life.

Recipes for Wrinkles and Bad Complexions

[illegible] recipes that have been published [illegible] that have successfully stood the test of time.

Wrinkle Remover—One ounce powdered saxolite, dissolved in ½ pint witch hazel. Use as a wash lotion. It brings instantaneous results.

Face Peeler—Pure mercolized wax applied at night like cold cream, only not rubbed in, wash off in the morning. It causes the worn-out scarf skin to come off in tiny, almost invisible flakes, a little each day, until the fresh young under-skin is wholly in evidence. The beautiful rose-tinted complexion thus obtained is not to be compared with one made over with cosmetics. If the old skin is marred with [illegible] these blemishes are of course discarded with the skin itself. An ounce of the wax is sufficient in any case.

The ingredients [illegible] inexpensive and can be found in any drugstore.

A MAN AND HIS WIFE

Isabel Finds That John Cannot Bear to Hear a Word Against Mrs. Simmons

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XLIII

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

IT was late when John reached home that night. Isabel wondered idly at his tardy return. Then she remembered that Ella Sanger lived [illegible] that [illegible] she [illegible] this at her [illegible] walked [illegible] the [illegible] before [illegible]

"[illegible] repairing. Yes, I walked a part of the way home. I ate very heartily this evening, you know, and a walk helps to settle one's dinner. Your affair went off beautifully, my dear, and I like your friends the Ferrises very much."

She was glad he was in such a genial frame of mind. Of late there was so often a coolness between them that she was glad when there was a [illegible] amicably.

At breakfast the following morning a change came to the condition that had prevailed the previous night. John, wishing to maintain pleasant relations, referred approvingly to various [illegible] pending [illegible] "You look very sweet, Isabel. [illegible] new."

"It is a year old," she reminded him. "Moreover, what makes a gown old is not the length of time one has had it, but the number of times one has worn it in the presence of the same people. This—my only good evening dress—I wore to Mrs. S[illegible] then to the Ferris dinner, then to the dinner you gave to Mrs. Simmons, and again last night. Every one of these people who were there last night have seen me wear it at least tw[illegible]."

"And I venture to believe that not one of the persons who have seen it ever knew you had it on before," he declared.

"You are mistaken there," she said.

"You can't prove that I am," he teased.

"Yes, I can," she contradicted. "The night that Mrs. Simmons was here she remarked on the fact that I always wore that blue gown."

John flushed. "Are you sure that she said exactly that?" he questioned searchingly.

JOHN MAKES A BLUNDER IN DISCUSSING THE GOWN

"Something very much like it," she returned, still without any show of temper.

"You exaggerate, Isabel," he reproved. "I happen to know that what Adelaide said was meant in the kindest way, and that you misrepresented it."

"How do you know?" still gently.

"Because," the tactless man informed [illegible] mentioned to me the fact that she had evidently peeved you by something she said. She told me that she asked you if you wore blue because I was fond of it, and that you flashed out at her [illegible]

[illegible] Isabel [illegible] complete control [illegible] remember [illegible] those she told you. It is strange"—her tone was now reflective—"that she should complain to you of the way your wife addressed her in your home and mine. I can hardly understand her ethics. For myself, I should think that to discuss a wife with her husband was distinctly bad form."

"I declare!" John brought his fist down upon the table with a bang, "for twisting situations to suit your own fancies and jealousies you take [illegible] whole matter was that Adelaide was worried at the thought that she had said something to annoy you; so she told me about it, and said she was sorry that you had taken amiss what she meant in all kindness. She also said"—He checked himself.

"What?" Isabel demanded. "Now [illegible] begun, you may as well [illegible] What were you going to say?"

"She [illegible] said," continued luckless John, "that she was afraid you would never like her. Actually, Isabel—you won't believe it, but it's true—there were tears in her eyes when she said that."

"Why?" the wife queried, as if curious to understand this phenomenon. "Why should she want me to care for her?"

"Because she liked you, and, as she and I are friends, she was hoping that my wife and she might be good chums."

ISABEL CALMLY TELLS HIM HE IS WRONG

Isabel laughed a hard metallic little laugh.

"My dear John," she said, "the only part of the sentence which appeals to me as true is that which states that Mrs. Simmons is an old friend of yours. As to her wanting to be chummy with me—[illegible] She has [illegible] wrong way about it."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean," she explained, "that the woman who wants to keep on good terms with a man's wife, and is so much that wife's friend that she wants to keep the man on good terms with the woman he has married, will not complain to that man about his wife's behavior or speeches. You, being a man, are too little versed in feminine tactics to appreciate this. I am not so easily duped."

"You are certainly wrong," he exclaimed hotly. "You do Adelaide Simmons an injustice. You do not understand her at all."

"I hardly think I do her an injustice," she returned, still with exasperating calmness. "And pardon me if I say I think that I understand her quite well."

Her [illegible] vexation to hot anger. "We will stop this discussion here and now," he exclaimed. "What I said once before I repeat now—and this time I mean it. I forbid you to mention Mrs. Simmons to me again. I will not have my friends sneered at and insulted!"

The spot in her cheeks became redder, and [illegible] came [illegible] to her eyes, but her voice was steady.

"I thank you for [illegible]," she replied. "And I [illegible] to obey your orders. I shall not mention your—friend, Mrs. S[illegible] again. Please remember [illegible] if [illegible] silence puzzles you in the future."

Do You Know That—

Most animals have very good ideas about doctoring themselves when they are not well. For instance, an animal suffering from rheumatism keeps in the sun. The warrior ants have ambulances, and when an investigator cuts the antenae of an ant other ants cover the wound with a transparent fluid secreted in their mouths.

The railway connecting Chili and Bolivia, which crosses the Andes 14,105 feet above sea level, provides oxygen chambers in which passengers can get relief from the rarefied air of the high altitudes.

Different Lengths of a Day

It Does Not Always Include 24 Hours

NOT everywhere and always does the natural day include twenty-four hours if measured from sunrise to sunrise.

A day is not a fixed number of hours, but the length of time during which the light of the sun illumines any part of the earth. In some parts of Norway the day lasts from May 21 to July 22 without interruption. In Spitzbergen the longest day is three and a half months, and the shortest two and a half hours of actual light.

At Petrograd the longest day is nineteen hours and the shortest five. At Hamburg the longest is seventeen and the shortest seven, and in London the longest is sixteen and a half and the shortest eight hours.

The ancient Jews fixed the beginning of the day at sunrise, with the Umbrians it began at noon, and the Egyptians and Romans fixed the time at midnight, a custom adopted by the United States and by most of the European countries.

It is a matter of common knowledge that the longest day of the year is June 21 and the shortest December 21 (sometimes the 22d). This latter is the time when the sun is farthest south on its annual slant over the Tropic of Capricorn, making the maximum declination to the axis of the earth.

All over the world this date marks a turning point in duration of the day, although in every case it is not the shortest day. In places south of the Equator they are enjoying the longest day. At the South Pole on this date it is high noon of the six months day, and at the North Pole it is midnight of the "great night."

FRECKLES

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With the Othine Prescription.

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by any of the Riker-Jaynes Drug Stores, or any druggist, under guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

MOVE TO AMEND THE CENSORSHIP BILL MAKING IT EVEN MORE OFFENSIVE

Proposed Change Would Give Drastic and Unwarranted Power to Two Officials.

Swayed by hysteria of oratory, the House advanced to a third reading the moving picture censorship bill

Confused by a potpourri of issues, the House permitted itself to be subjected to a test vote which indicated 44 members in favor of the pending legislation and 47 opposed

Whether by design or not, "The Birth of a Nation" became the issue at stake, and the House, accepting the issue, voted in favor of the bill which vests in three Boston officials unlimited power to suppress any form of public entertainment and to determine at their will and pleasure the educational standards for all the people of the State.

Meanwhile a gallery of colored men and women who do not want the bill, because they believe it will be ineffective, sat patiently, wondering where it will all end

Representative Washburn of Worcester, who favored the bill, declared "the Republican party cannot afford to turn its back on the colored people."

He spoke for the "silent" minority, he said. The colored people were great soldiers and demand protection. Mr. Washburn evidently had not been informed that earlier in the day the colored communicants of an Everett church had filed with the House of Representatives a petition in protest against the legislation for which he was speaking

He told the House that he fought for the "silent minority even as he fought "shoulder to shoulder with the Republican leader of the House against the sectarian bill and in favor of the silent minority who opposed that sectarian legislation."

ROWLEY HAS AMENDMENT.

Statistics show that the people who opposed the sectarian bill are not in any appreciable minority in the State Perusal of the daily journal of the House of Representatives show that Mr Washburn of Worcester did not vote either for or against the sectarian bill

Anyway, in order to conserve the colored vote to the Republican party, Representative Rowley of Brookline, after the declaration of the test vote, submitted a new bill, which is a trifle more satisfactory to the colored people, but which in a greater measure attacks the right of free speech and free publication

The bill advanced by the House grants unlimited suppression authority to the Mayor of Boston, the Police Commissioner and the Chief Justice of the Boston Municipal Court, their judgement to be unanimous.

Under the Rowley amendment, which may be reached today, the power will be vested in any two of the three officers [illegible] unwarranted [illegible] thing [illegible] Hedy-winks [illegible] the parl [illegible] vate ope.

Messrs. B[illegible] of Boston, W. H. S[illegible] of Boston [illegible] of Medford [illegible] with Mr. Kett[illegible] of Somerville, the Republican leader to [illegible] the way.

BIG EFFECT OF BILL.

Strange [illegible] there was [illegible] gentlemen who [illegible] the State of Mass[illegible] down to the root of the whole thing. Not a syllable was spoken of the momentous effect the bill will have upon the public policy of the State and nation. No one anticipated that the legislation invests three city officials of Boston with the arbitrary right to prescribe the educational standards which must be obeyed

During the aggravated talking somebody mentioned that the moving pictures have come to be recognized as both an educational institution and as an enlivened newspaper. But there it stopped.

An aged lady who sat in the gallery and whose appearance recalled the days of old lavender, was heard to ask her neighbor

"Won't this bill permit the newspapers to be censored?"

"Certainly not,"

But the old lady was insistent

"You establish a principle," she said. "Perhaps next year some person will come here to the State House with a bill and demand that the newspapers be restricted in their right of free-speech They will have the argument that the motion pictures are censored, and as the pictures are but animated newspapers why shouldn't the newspapers be censored too"

The Senate Ways and Means Committee tried to find out where it stood on the Carstens-Lowell bill, that establishes a couple of new State commissions, adds a few more officials to the State's payroll and [illegible]

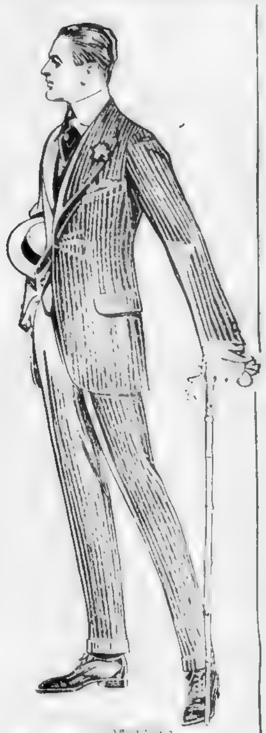
QUALITY
That's the Important Thing

Quality in the material, quality in the workmanship—that's what you should look for and insist upon in all your clothes buying. Style is essential and price should be considered, but Quality is the vital element the very heart and soul of true, genuine worth in clothing.



It has been truly said that the recollection of quality remains long after the price is forgotten, yet no man should over-pay for quality, and no man does at this Live Store where every economy incident to big cash buying, low rent and cash selling is turned to the customer's advantage.

We've built this great store's business on the firm foundation of known high quality, to which has been added the essential attribute of unquestioned style and the pleasing feature of a bigger money's worth at each and every price than is to be had in any other store—anywhere—always.

Kuppenheimer Suits

In these fine garments you find a striking illustration of the extra value, service and satisfaction resulting from supreme quality in every thread and stitch. They are good from inside out to outside in. They've as much quality in the interlinings, in the thread with which they are sewn, in all the little unseen things, as in their pure, virgin wool exteriors. Add to this their undeniable leadership in style and they become truly remarkable values at

MAIL AUTOS START HERE ON JULY 1

The Postoffice Department has approved the recommendations of Postmaster Murray to install an automobile delivery and collection service to take the place of the nine electric cars now transporting mail from the central office to the stations in outlying districts.

The automobile service will go into operation on July 1 and the postmaster says it will save the government at least [illegible] a year besides giving the public a more up-to-date and efficient service and collection system.

Eight auto trucks will collect package mail for the main office, Essex street, North Postal, Hanover street, Back Bay and Fenway stations.

Postmaster Murray will receive proposals for auto trucks up to 4:30 p. m., May 24. The department thinks so well of Murray's recommendations that it has notified him it intends to extend the [illegible] service to San Francisco.

They would irritate and I would scratch them which would make them bleed and burn something awful. My face and neck were disfigured and I was ashamed to go out. I could not wear a collar. At night I could not sleep because they would burn and itch so bad.

One day I happened to see an advertisement in the paper and sent for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Just one week after using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment I found great relief. I would wash my face and neck with the Soap then put a little Ointment on and wash off in a few minutes. After using Cuticura Soap and Ointment several months I was completely healed." HUGHES WILL TRY TO STOP GIANTS

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

Whatever way [illegible] we pick Tom Hughes as the likely candidate for pitching honors up at Fenway Park this afternoon. Tom has [illegible] some good games this season [illegible] his turn, he is in good condition [illegible] why not? The answer remains with Stallings.

Rudolph could go in against the Giants and maybe he will. He usually has the edge [illegible] McGraw's team. If he does go in today it will be a swing into the old championship combination—James, Tyler, Rudolph. Yet it seems too early to start the old winning rotation. There is a long season ahead and no manager [illegible] effort to wear his pitchers out thus early in the game.

But Stallings has other good pitchers this season besides the Big Three. That brings us back to Tom Hughes, who, we believe, stands the best chance of being Stallings' selection. Then don't forget Pat Ragan, Paul Strand and Dick Crutcher. In a few weeks George Davis, the Harvard strong [illegible], will be on hand.

THREE BRAVES TO GO.

When Davis reports Stallings will have to make a further reduction in his squad. By that time, too, Evers will be back [illegible] which [illegible] two players will have to be released. Maybe [illegible] will go. [illegible] Stallings is [illegible] because he [illegible] keep Fred Mitchell out of the coaching box. [illegible] chief want [illegible] the lines.

[illegible]

We believe Stallings would rather have Mitchell [illegible] of the squad so that he [illegible] coaching box.

MARQUARD LIKES TO PITCH.

The Giants having used Tesreau, their most dependable pitcher, [illegible] have to fall back on Mathewson, Marquard, Perritt or Fromme for other games of the series today. [illegible] would not be surprised if the [illegible] did the twirling for the New Yorks this afternoon. We [illegible] him [illegible] hard the last time [illegible] the [illegible] game that followed the [illegible] mixup), but the wry necked [illegible] may come back.

The Giants were greatly [illegible] over winning yesterday's game [illegible] the Braves and McGraw believes [illegible] are due to climb up [illegible] the ladder where they belong.

Kind of bad start we made for the home-coming [illegible]. However, George Tyler pitched mighty good [illegible] the first time out this year. [illegible] right when he takes his turn next time.

Ed was along with the Chicago club when the two teams, piloted by Al Spalding, made the tour around the world. The team crossed from England to France, or vice versa, in a steamer during one of the worst storms that ever visited the English Channel. Things got so bad that even the captain of the ship surrendered to despair. Ed grabbed two life preservers, strapped them around him and then offered up this prayer:

"Oh, Lord, I will lead a different life if you will spare this ship and our lives."

The ship arrived safely in port and Ed went back to Chicago and started a saloon."

Battles between players and umpires have been features of the baseball world for years, but few of the famous battles have approached in possible effects the Herzog-Rigler mill.

Tim Hurst's career in the American League practically ended when he was charged with [illegible] the face of Eddie Collins [illegible] a cuspidor after a brief and [illegible] discussion. During his [illegible] history as an umpire, Hurst had numerous fistic battles with the players.

Bill Klem has had a mixup or two [illegible] there have been several [illegible] between [illegible] the players, but [illegible] as a rule, were [illegible] the game ended, and [illegible] the crowd. [illegible] Saturday, with an umpire [illegible] manager in the face [illegible], is practically without precedent in big league history.

CORNELL PICKED TO BEAT HARVARD

Although Jack Moakley, the coach of the Cornell track team, arrived in Boston today, the hors de combat from Ithaca is not due to reach the [illegible] until tomorrow morning, the day of the annual Harvard-Cornell dual meet, which will be held in the Stadium on Soldiers Field.

At the meeting of these university track teams last Spring, Harvard was [illegible] into camp by Cornell rather [illegible]. The acquisition of track and field stars, such as Alva Richards, the Olympic champion in 1912, Western Willcox, the sensational Harvard quarter-miler, and Eddie Teschner, the former Exeter flyer, has strengthened both teams. Although the Harvard team is a trifle better [illegible] aggregation than it was in [illegible], Cornell is [illegible] a big favorite. [illegible] the first dual meet that the Crimson cinder-path followers have [illegible] this year and it will [illegible] Coach "Pooch" Donovan a fine opportunity to get a line on his athletes for the meeting with Yale, which is scheduled to be held one week from tomorrow in New Haven.

GOOD IN SHORT RUNS.

On paper it appears as though Harvard has the bulge on Cornell in the century, furlong, quarter and half-mile events. And if "Pussy" Smith and Fred Allen are in shape, the Crimson should annex the majority of points in the 220-yard hurdles.

The [illegible] run will be the event that will bring out the real competition, due to the fact that the race is already [illegible] to Speiden, the veteran Cornell miler. Kent of Harvard is running trial [illegible] at the Stadium at a very fast [illegible] and those who have [illegible] him are of the opinion that he will [illegible] Speiden travel close to [illegible] for the high honors in this event.

CORNELL IN DISTANCE RUNS.

The main strength of the Cornell team is in the distance runs and the field events. Hoffmire and Potter should take first and second places in the two mile, while Alva Richards, [illegible], Mutchbeen and Foss are expected to clean up in the field [illegible].

The meet is scheduled to start at 3 o'clock [illegible] the baseball team will be in Worcester for the Holy Cross game, a very large crowd of graduates [illegible] will be [illegible] to [illegible] the track team.

SOX OUT TO TURN TABLES ON YANKS

NEW YORK, May 7.—After participating in one of the best played games of the season, the Boston Red Sox and Yankees will go after the game this afternoon, with even more determination than that which marked the opening of the series here.

Manager Carrigan hated to lose the first game. But when he considered the kind of a game that had been lost, he was almost reconciled. His young pitcher, "Babe" Ruth, showed the Boston leader that he has the goods. Few pitchers can make two singles and a home run in a game and still be able to pitch in the manner that Ruth did.

It looks as though Collins would toe the slab for the Boston players this afternoon, while Caldwell will be sent in and try to cop another victory for the Yankees.

Knockouts I Have Seen By Ed. W. Smith

(This is the first of a series of articles on knockouts, which will be published by the Boston AMERICAN. They are written by Ed W. Smith, well-known fight referee and ring expert.)

By ED W. SMITH.

There are many kinds of knockouts, all classified under that broad and sweeping ring term of "K. O." In parlance of the glove arena they mean pretty much the same thing to the fight fan—defeat, always defeat.

Sensational knockouts have been so frequent in the last twenty-five years, or since John L. Sullivan, under the guidance of Billy Madden, brought the five-ounce glove into lasting popularity that it would be a too difficult task to pick out one that could stand out as the most sensational of all them.

For that reason we will approach that portion of the subject with diffidence, stating that the most sensational knockout ever handed a boxer in Chicago was dealt out by Jack McCormick, then of Philadelphia, with Norman Selby ("Kid" McCoy) as the victim.

KNOCKOUT CREATED SENSATION.

This created more ring chatter at the time than any other because of McCoy. McCoy did not weigh much over 140 pounds at the time and looked more like a little boy along side of the massive 195 pounds of solid front that Jack presented to him. It was plain that McCoy had all the skill and speed in his favor and his splendid footwork, without being flashy, carried him so nicely out of range that McCormick during the first minute was made to look like a truck horse. A half dozen lightning-like lefts to McCormick's fact put plenty of pink there and appeared to fluster the big man.

McCormick never let up in his rushing, however, twice sprawling the "Kid" as he flew by. The "Kid" made a fatal mistake looking for an opening through which to land that left hook of his. He knew he could bring the giant down with it if he landed.

McCoy waited near the ropes at the front side of the ring, right in the glare of the footlights. McCormick rushed in close, being held off slightly with that tantalizing left. Steadying himself McCormick leaned back, dropped his ponderous right almost to the floor of the ring and brought it around in a huge sweeping circle half over arm, but bearing every ounce of strength he possessed.

BLOWS LANDED ACCURATELY.

McCoy must have seen it coming. Likewise he must has miscalculated its distinction and force. The smaller man jerked his head back with a snap, but he did not get it back far enough. The glove landed full on McCoy's cheek, fairly plowed its way through the jaw down on to the breast stopping there with a resounding thud.

McCoy's arms dropped to his side and he topped slowly but heavily on his back. He fell partly under the front rope and never moved a muscle as Referee Hogan tolled off the seconds. It wasn't necessary to count. Never was a boxer so completely "out."

The big crowd, stunned for an instant, broke into a frantic yell and those that could reach McCormick carried him around on their shoulders. It was a crazy scene at the finish.

McCoy came to quickly enough, but he was dazed for a long time. I saw and talked with him the next morning. He scarcely knew what had happened and was asking curious questions about the battle. He kept rolling his tongue into his left cheek—the inside was badly cut from the contact of McCormick's right swing. The side of the jaw was a big swollen lump, too. He complained of a frightful headache and was still a bit dizzy. The following day, after a sleep of nine hours, McCoy was completely over it except for the soreness in his jaw.

MIKE GLOVER TO TRAIN GALLANT

By JACK CONWAY.

MIKE GLOVER, the skilful south Boston welterweight, has been secured to help prepare Gilbert Gallant for his twelve-round bout with Sam Robideau, which will be staged before the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night. Glover has trained with Robideau on several occasions and is well acquainted with his style of fighting. Consequently he is in a position to give Gallant many valuable tips about the Philadelphian.

Glover should be able to teach the Chelsea lightweight a few new things about "inside" boxing as he is one of the most scientific men of his weight in the country. Joe Farren is also training with Gallant and he should give Alex McLean's protege an opportunity to engage in some hard fighting.

A semi-final bout has been arranged between Bay Wood, the Fall River battler, and Patsy DeLucca of the North End. Together with six round preliminaries between Eddie Flynn of Lynn and "Young" Brusso of Revere, and Howard McRae with "Young" Josie of North Adams, gives evidence of proving another stellar night of boxing.

Boston Amateur Is Stopped on Coast

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—In the first bout of the 115-pound class of the exposition amateur boxing contests, Tony Vatian of the Lincoln Club of Brighton, Mass., took the decision from Eddie Rooney of the San Francisco Olympic Club after three rounds of clever milling.

Rudy Peterson of the San Francisco Olympic Club sprang a surprise when he knocked out Edward C. Carr of the Harmony Club, Boston, national title-holder in the 175-pound division, in the first round of their scheduled bout.

Darling Single Scull Champion at Harvard

F. P. Darling of Worcester won the single sculling championship of Harvard in a race of a mile and seven-eighths on the Charles River Basin with S. A. Robinson of Hawaii, who finished second. He will represent the Crimson in a race with the two leading Yale representatives on May 15.

The class championship was won by the sophomore eight, who defeated the juniors by half a length, and the senior crew by nearly five lengths. The sophomores will meet the champion Blue crew on the same date

Defeat of Gillissie by Manuel Surprise

Manuel sprung a big surprise in the New England three-cushion championship tournament at the Imperial room last evening by defeating Gillissie, 50 points to 26. The players tonight will be Warren and Dr. Hudson.

Collins in First Race at Revere

Elmer Collins, the popular Lynn cyclist, will start in his first race of the season on the evening of May 15 at the Revere Cycle. Collins' opponents in a 25-mile motor-paced race will be Leon Didier, the Frenchman, and Bobby Walthour, the "Dixie Flyer." In addition to this event there will be another motor-paced race of five-mile heats between Vincenzo Madonna and Harold Rollins and the usual list of amateur and professional sprints.

MAHAN TO TEACH AT YALE SCHOOL

Daniel of the Lion's Den will have nothing on Eddie Mahan, Harvard's famous football captain who is to spend the Summer in the lair of the Yale building. History tells one that it is just about as natural for the kin of old Eli and the children of John Harvard to dwell in peace and harmony—in an athletic sense—as it is for the wolf and the lamb to pass the time of day together.

Mahan is certainly entering the lion's maw when he starts his vacation work as a tutor in the Roxbury school's Summer quarters at New London, Ct.

Braves Will Raise Pennant on May 28

The National League pennant, won by the Braves last season, will be raised on May 28 at Fenway Park. The Philadelphia team will be the opponents of the Braves on that day in a doubleheader. The pennant has arrived in Boston and is the gift of John Morrill.

CLEAN-UP WEEK

The first week in May has beeen appointed as clean-up week all over the city. I have gone through my stock with the intention of culling out everything in ends up to half pieces. Some I have sold myself as high as $25.00. There are 1900 yards of goods, purchased from a Hartford tailor last week, I want cleaned up, mostly in single suit lengths of high-priced woolens, some light weight, some heavy weight, and some medium weights, suitable for all year wear. I want to close out the entire range. Suit to order,

$10

I have loaded my windows to the utmost capacity, placed those goods out on the corner of my doorway and lined them up on each side of the store, so every man can make his own selection, at absolutely one price, suit to order $10.00

Blue Serge ends, bought to sell by Hartford's high-priced tailor for prices ranging from $30 to $35; my price, suit to order $10.00

United States Worsted Company's Blue Serge, sold by me for $15—$18—$20, while they last, suit to order, only $10.00

Genuine Priestley's English Serge that I made a specialty of this season at $15; I have half-dozen full pieces of this goods, suit to order $10.00

Globe Unfinished Worsted that I sold early in the season as high as $25, suit to order $10.00

Grays, Blues, Fancy Silk Mixed Worsteds, as fine in style as any tailor boasts of for $35 a suit, to order $10.00

Come in, take your pick, some two, some three piece suits. Let the cutter measure you. They will be all sold at one price, suit to order $10.00

Hundreds of trousers, sold as high as $8-$10, a variety that would charm the eye of a connoisseur $3.25

Uncalled for Suits. Suits made up and uncalled for I have gathered from my different stores, ready to wear out $5, $6, $7

Uncalled for trousers $1.75

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were quiet and irregular at the opening and business on the local exchange continued rather dull. But there was soon a spurt of activity in New York. Traders on this side of the Atlantic appear to share the disposition of those in London, where there was hesitancy about commitments, owing to war rumors and statements. London traders are waiting for Italy to declare war, it is said. There was considerable bear pressure in New York during the first few minutes and the majority of important issues suffered price recessions. But losses were small on the average. The market tone improved later. Bethlehem Steel sold as high as 154.

There was a liberal supply of Amalgamated and Anaconda stocks. The distribution plan was much discussed. That Amalgamated stockholders will get no more than $3 cash in addition to Anaconda stock was said to be disappointing to the speculative element.

Soon after the opening Anaconda was off 1½ and Amalgamated had declined ½. Other recessions in New York were American Sugar ⅝, American Telephone ½, Canadian Pacific ½, N. Y. Central ½, Reading ⅝, Union Pacific ⅝, Utah Copper ⅛. U. S. Steel was unchanged. Chino was up ⅝, Utah Copper ⅛, Southern Pacific ½, Bethlehem Steel 4½ at 152, Pressed Steel Car 1⅝ and Baldwin Locomotive 1¼.

Among gains in Boston were Alaska Gold ⅝, Granby ½, Greene-Cananea ½, Isle Royale ¼, Quincy 1, United Fruit ⅝ and American Zinc ⅝. Declines included Butte & Superior ¼, Allouez ½, Calumet & Arizona ¼, Copper Range ½ and North Butte ⅛.

BUYING COPPER AHEAD.

In response to a request from the New York American, the recognized leader in the copper industry in this country made the following statement exclusively to Hearst newspapers.

"European belligerents," he said, "are trying to place large orders for copper for delivery covering the next two years.

"Production has been so well sold up already, however, that it has not been possible to make contracts for anything like the total requirements.

"High prices are being offered for guaranteed deliveries.

"You have noticed reports of orders having been placed for many hundreds of thousands of rifles.

"Every million of rifles ordered means a demand for a billion (1,000,000,000) cartridges, which call for a great quantity of copper."

BIG ORDER PENDING.

One of the biggest orders for metals ever placed is pending, it is understood. The inquiry is said to be from Russia and is for 15,000 tons of copper, 10,000 tons of spelter and 5,000 tons of aluminum. On the London metal exchange today spot copper was up £1 5s., futures £1 and electrolytic £1. Spelter was off 10s.

California Tour Candidates

READ THESE TABLES

A "consecutive set" consists of 15 coupons, one for each day in the Series; for example, one coupon of Serie[illegible]" No. 1, one coupon of Series "C" No. 2, one coup[illegible]f Series "C" No. 3, etc., up to and including Seri[illegible]" No. 15.

For every complete "consecutive set" of 15 consecutive coupons, as described above, DOUBLE VOTE VALUE will be given.

The regular face value of these 15 "C" coupons is 33 votes, but if sent in, in one complete set, as described, within one week after the close of Series "C," they will count DOUBLE.

Face value ONLY will be given for coupons which do not make up consecutive sets.

Some of the candidates in the American's Great California Tours Contest still seem to be in some doubt as to how the double credits are given for "consecutive sets."

To make this clear to ALL, the following tables are printed.

Every candidate should study these tables most carefully.

Everything that pertains to the system of vote values, coupon expiration dates, etc., is given here:

The Anti=Navy Obsession of Thomas Jefferson Still Keeps Its Foolish Hold on Democracy

Within these few days, two events have vividly emphasized the lack of respect and, indeed, the contempt with which the masters of the world's most powerful navy look upon the rights of this nation.

An American merchant ship, peacefully pursuing its trading voyage on the high seas, has been torpedoed by a German submarine, with the result that its commander and two of its crew are drowned and the ship itself disabled and saved from going down only by the fortunate appearance of aid to tow it into a neighboring port.

Neither the peaceful character of the ship nor the American flag flying above it secured its safety. It was struck the same deadly blow that it would have received had it been the ship of an enemy, instead of the ship of an neutral nation.

And immediately prior to this humiliating happening we have just heard the British Government announce to American manufacturers that they would be permitted to buy wool in the world's markets provided that British inspectors and agents in America were assured that goods manufactured from this wool would not afterward be sold to, or find their way to, countries with which the British Government has forbidden American textile manufacturers to trade; with the further proviso that American ships shall not carry the wool bought abroad by American manufacturers to American ports.

These intolerable humiliations are recent. But they are not solitary. They have been preceded by a long series of similar injurious aggressions upon American commerce and by disdainful contempts of the dignity and the rights of the American people.

In the conduct of their bitter and ferocious warfare upon each other, neither the German nor the British Government has hesitated to damage our neutral commerce.

The German Admiralty long since notified Washington of its intention to destroy ships approaching the British Isles and declared that its mines and submarines could not undertake to discriminate between enemy and American vessels. Obviously, that was a warning to us to cease commerce with Great Britain.

The British Government, from the very inception of hostilities, has seized American ships bound to German ports and confiscated such cargoes as were contraband of war. And, within the definitions of contraband accepted hitherto by all nations, it had the right so to act. But it has not been satisfied to act within recognized international law.

Instead, it has proceeded to add to the list of absolute contraband of war goods that never were considered even conditional contraband — goods that have been over and over again declared by its own ministers to be goods of free voyage at any and all times. And then it has confiscated more American ships and cargoes under this extra-legal and unheard-of definition of contraband.

It has followed this up by ordering American ships to cease carrying foodstuffs to the civilian populations of enemy countries, though in every declaration of international law promulgated since the Declaration of Paris such foodstuffs are expressly pronounced goods of free voyage.

It has then gone still farther, and by an Order in Council has forbidden American ships to trade with neutral countries, and has instructed British naval officers to capture and to confiscate American merchantmen peacefully voyaging to Italy, Holland, Sweden, Denmark or Norway when, in the opinion of those officers, there is danger that the goods on board may eventually find their way from the neutral country to Germany or to Austria.

And to all these manifold insults and injuries we have replied only with remonstrances—and with actual submission to the order to get off the seas and to stay off the seas until the warring powers can decide to which of them the lordship of the seas belong.

THESE INSULTS, THESE INJURIES, THESE HUMILIATIONS, THIS CONTEMPT, WE ENDURE, CITIZENS, BECAUSE ONE CONGRESS AFTER ANOTHER HAS STUPIDLY AND CRIMINALLY REFUSED TO PLACE AT THE DISPOSAL OF THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENT AN AMERICAN NAVY STRONG ENOUGH TO COMPEL FOREIGN POWERS TO RESPECT, EVERYWHERE AND ALWAYS, THE RIGHTS OF AMERICAN SEAMEN AND THE POWER AND THE DIGNITY OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

* * *

It is impossible not to be impressed with the remarkable similarity of the conditions now existing and of the conditions that existed in the early years of the century in which all of us who are past childhood were born. The parallel is as complete as it is painful.

In the first year of that century Mr. Jefferson was elected President of the United States, and his administration, so long as it was confined to domestic problems, was marked by vigor, by sound judgment and by achievements which still profoundly influence the life of the nation and the advancement of mankind.

But this really great man, in most situations so sure of foot and so far of sight, was in one fundamental respect as a man smitten with mental palsy and with intellectual blindness.

Though he had seen with his own eyes thousands of hostile troops transported across seas and landed upon American coasts to destroy American independence; though he had seen those enemies defeated and that independence finally secured by the naval succor of France; though he knew that he and his fellows who signed the Declaration would have dangled at the ends of ropes had not the fleets of Spain and France kept the fleets of Britain at a distance during the struggle for the Colonies' freedom, he still, with an incredible fatuousness, opposed, with all his powerful influence, the strengthening and even the maintenance of the American navy.

To descend, at a leap as it were, from the sublime of the great past to the ridiculousness of petty present officialdom in its most ridiculous exhibition, Mr. Jefferson even out-Danieled Daniels. He was more absurd than absurd Josephus.

When the lion, reversing the fable, stooped to don the ass's hide and ears he was a more laughable ass than Mr. Wilson's comic opera Secretary of the Navy. Preposterous as it seems, Jefferson formulated a policy that was truly Danielesque.

Toward the end of his second term Mr. Jefferson wrote to Thomas Paine:

> "I believe that gunboats are the only water defence which can be useful AND CAN PROTECT US FROM THE RUINOUS FOLLY OF A NAVY."

And he then actually proceeded to plan and, in fact, to have constructed a fleet of gunboats, the most astonishing, doubtless, in the history of navies, since these extraordinary vessels were designed to be kept on land and under sheds in times of peace and only launched and filled with militia when there was war!

* * *

The obsession which clouded the great intellect and which has marred the fame of Thomas Jefferson strangely persisted in obsessing the Democratic administrations which have succeeded his—and still persists.

The nation entered upon the war of 1812 almost wholly unprepared, because a Democratic President and Democratic Congress had rescinded the appropriations voted six years before for the strengthening of the navy; and the only glory acquired in that war was by the victories of the four ships which stupid and grudging parsimony had allowed to be constructed.

Succeeding Democratic administrations and Congresses permitted the navy to deteriorate until, when the nation went to war in 1861, the Government had actually to rob its own commerce of its necessary ships in order to enforce a blockade against foes who had only a couple of privateers afloat on the high seas.

* * *

As was the world in the begininng of the nineteenth century, so is the world in the beginning of this twentieth century—in arms from the Vistula to the Pillars of Hercules, from the Arctic to the Antarctic—Europe, Asia, Africa, the island continents of the Southern Seas and all that vast dominion which divides possession of North America with ourselves—all, all echoing to the tramp of armed men, the roll of mustering drums, the wheels of hurrying cannon and the multifarious clamor and wild uproar of war.

And as was our country then, so is our country now—humiliated, buffeted, its commerce forbidden to traverse the seas, its remonstrances disregarded and its naval power insufficient to give dignity and authority to the voice of the nation.

We cannot sum up the conditions of this present day more accurately than by transcribing the exact words in which the historian depicts the conditions that immediately preceded the year 1812:

> "All the difficulties which followed may be summed up in a few words. The British Government was then the representative of the ancient SYSTEM OF THE RESTRICTION OF COMMERCE AND HAD A POWERFUL NAVY TO ENFORCE ITS IDEAS. The American Government was endeavoring TO FORCE INTO INTERNATIONAL RECOGNITION THE SYSTEM OF NEUTRAL RIGHTS AND OF UNRESTRICTED COMMERCE; but its suspicious DEMOCRACY REFUSED TO GIVE IT A NAVY SUFFICIENT TO COMMAND RESPECT. The American Government apparently expected to gain its objects WITHOUT THE EXHIBITION OF ANYTHING BUT MORAL FORCE."

There is nothing to add nor anything to take away from those words in stating THE EXACT CONDITIONS WHICH OBTAIN AT THIS VERY DAY.

And we cannot better state the causes of the conditions of today or more correctly locate the responsibility for them than by quoting the same historian's statement of the causes of the nation's inability to enforce respect for its rights and dignity then. He says:

> "The Democratic party of the United States was almost exclusively agricultural AND HAD LITTLE KNOWLEDGE OF OR SYMPATHY WITH COMMERCIAL INTERESTS. It was pledged to the reduction of national expenses and the debt. And it DID NOT WISH TO SHOULDER THE RESPONSIBILITY FOR A NAVY."

Look upon that picture and then upon this. See the painter of the past delineating, with unconscious brush, every feature of the present.

So true is it that history tells over the same thrice-told tale. So true is it that the Bourbon can neither learn nor forget.

* * *

This war in Europe will end, and for a time our humiliations and difficulties and losses will cease. But there will come other wars and other alliances. The foes of today may next year be fighting in the same trenches against the friends of today. Such has always been Europe's history.

And who can say how soon some cloud, full of the menace of war to us, may not rise above the Atlantic or the Pacific.

There is no love for America in the chancellories of the world. As they war upon each other, with lust of conquest and greed of trade in their hearts and prating moralties on their lips, so they will war on us whenever our riches and our feebleness shall combine to tempt the attack.

Citizens, we must build ships that can fight for us.

We must provide a navy that can protect us.

We must prepare for war in such fashion that war may not come as a thief in the night, to find us helpless and to bind us and to rob us in our own house.

We must prepare for war in such fashion that war will likely not come to our gates at all, but that, if it does come, it will be met with the defences of a wise nation—with the guns of our ships of war roaring amid the defiant and victorious cheers of a hundred million people.

And, citizens, we will not have this preparation and this security and this victory in war, if war we must, until, with our ballots, we put the powers of legislation and government into the hands of men who can look beyond the boundaries of Congressional districts and the limits of party traditions and see the relations of the nation to the politics of the world and the high and imperative necessity that we keep our own great place in the sun BY BEING ALWAYS READY TO RESPECT THE PEACE OF OTHERS AND ALWAYS READY TO REPEL THE ATTACKS OF THOSE WHO ARE NOT WILLING TO RESPECT OUR PEACE.
